Huskers Humble Texas 19-3 In Cotton Bowl

Lonnie Bennett (33), University of Texas halfback, watches the ball scoot away from him after missing a pitchout from quarterback Marty Akins in the third quarter of the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas Tuesday. Tom Pate (68), Nebraska right end, races to recover the ball, but was beaten to it by Husker middle guard John Bell. NU scored a touchdown three plays later to take a 16-3 lead, and went on to defeat Texas 19-3.

Survey By AP Reveals 2% Jump In December

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The old year ended with another round of price increases that pushed the family grocery bill to a level 13 per cent higher than it was in March, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The average increase in the price of a selected marketbasket was two per cent in December alone.

The AP surveyed the prices of 15 food and non-food items in 13 cities on March 1 and has rechecked them at the beginning of each succeeding month.

The marketbasket bill was up during December in 12 of 13 cities checked, with increases ranging from a fraction of a per cent in Miami to five per cent in Atlanta. The only decline came in Seattle where the marketbasket bill was down one per cent.

During November, the marketbasket rose in 9 of 13 cities checked.

The overall picture, from March 1 to Jan. 1, was even gloomier. The marketbasket was up in every city. Increases ranged from five per cent in Salt Lake City to 19 per cent in Boston.

In many cases, the December increases reflected higher production costs brought on by rising fuel prices and shortages. Items like detergent, which remained fairly stable during most of the year, shot up in several cities.

Coffee prices, which rose earlier in the year, were steady in most cities, despite recently announced hikes in the price of Brazilian coffee. But industry spokesmen predicted consumers could expect to pay more for coffee early this year.

A look at the total number of items checked showed 28.7 per cent went up in price during the month of December. That's about the same number as increased during November.

At the same time, only 11.8 per cent of the total number of items checked declined from Dec. 1 to Jan. 1, compared to 14 per cent which dropped in price during November.

Almost half the items — 48.7 per cent — remained unchanged from Dec. 1 to Jan. 1 and 10.8 per cent were unavailable on one of the check dates.

The housewife trying to feed her family a hearty breakfast was among the hardest hit by the December price rises. Eggs and milk led the list of items rising in price. Eggs, which went up in 12 of 13 cities checked during November, rose again in 11 cities from Dec. 1 to Jan. 1. They declined in the 12th city — Los Angeles — and remained the same in the 13th — New York.

The price of a dozen eggs rose to a record level of $1 a dozen or more in August, dropped back down briefly, then inched up again. The December price rises ranged from two per cent in Philadelphia and Miami to 14 per cent in Detroit, where a dozen, medium white eggs went from 85 to 97 cents. The average increase was six per cent.

Milk prices went up during December in eight of 13 cities checked, rising an average of six per cent. The price went down in two cities and stayed the same in three. The increases brought the price of a quart of whole milk in most cities to about 41 or 42 cents in contrast to an average price of about 33 or 34 cents back in March.

Bargains were hard to find, but shoppers with a taste for hot dogs were in luck in six cities where the price went down. The average decrease was 11 per cent. The price went up in four cities and stayed the same in three.

The picture contrasted with that during November when all-beef frankfurters went up in seven of 13 cities checked, rising an average of 14 per cent.

11-Minute Meeting Opens Session

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Responding to its constitutional obligation, the Legislature opened its 1974 session Tuesday with an 11-minute meeting, then adjourned so senators could watch the Cotton Bowl clash between Nebraska and Texas.

The lawmakers will launch the 1974 session in earnest on Wednesday at 9 a.m.

Tuesday's mini-meeting featured a fleeting parliamentary bid to initiate a new attempt to override Gov. J. James Exon's veto of the major school aid bill of 1973.

Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway submitted a motion to reconsider the bill, LB472, but Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell entered his formal objection to the move.

Wipes Out Action

That, Legislative Clerk Vince Brown told newsmen following adjournemnt, apparently wiped out any further action on the bill, although senators presumably could attempt to suspend their rules to consider the motion on another day.

Waldron's motion grew out of an attorney general's opinion that the Legislature might be able to consider a motion regarding the 1973 school aid bill on the first day of its 1974 session.

Exon vetoed the $150 million dollar package on the final day of the 1973 session, and senators technically may reconsider a bill one day after such action. The opinion noted that the 1974 session is, in effect, an extension of the 1973 session.

Speaker Richard Proud of Omaha presided at the opening meeting. Acting Gov. Frank Marsh, who as lieutenant governor normally presides over the Legislature, welcomed the lawmakers into session.

Marsh is acting as governor while Exon is out of the state attending Cotton Bowl activities in Dallas.

Tax Bill To Come

Although senators accepted no business on the first of their 60 days in session this year, Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue has prepared for immediate introduction a bill which would raise the 1974 state income tax rate from 11% to 13%.

The rate was cut, effective Tuesday, by the State Board of Equalization.

Lewis said his bill would also provide that the Legislature, rather than the board, would hereafter establish both sales and income tax rates.

If the 1974 state income tax rate remains at 11%, Lewis said, current and programmed legislative commitments could not be adequately funded.

Also ready for introduction on Wednesday will be a legislative resolution submitted by Sen. Irving Wiltse of Falls City commending the Nebraska Public Power District and the Omaha Public Power District for "farsighted planning" in constructing nuclear power plants in the state.

Meanwhile, Appropriations Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings announced his budget unit will divide into three subcommittees to begin hearings on some of the smaller spending agencies Thursday.

Pat Nixon Named To Job Illegally

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon's appointment of his wife to serve on a national advisory council was illegal, the Western White House said Tuesday.

A presidential spokesman said the law prohibits the President from appointing a relative to a government position, and therefore Mrs. Nixon cannot serve on the new 25-member National Voluntary Service Advisory Council.

In announcing the appointment on Sunday, the White House said the First Lady had been designated by Nixon as temporary chairwoman of the council. She was to have been eligible for a regular government consultant fee of $138.48 for each day worked at council duties.

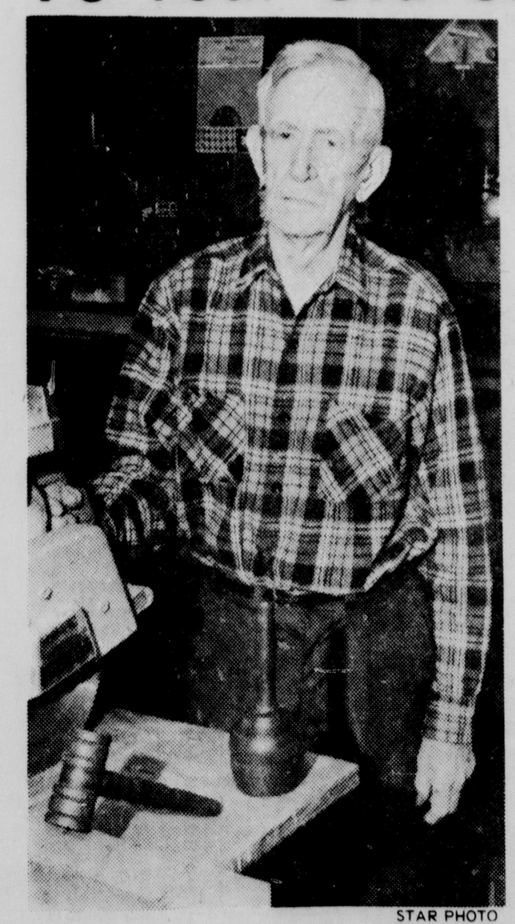

The White House statement released Tuesday did not explain how the mistake was made or how it was discovered.

The council was established under the Domestic Volunteer Service Act passed last October. Its purpose is to advise the director of ACTION, the umbrella agency for federal social service organizations.

The council's job includes reviewing the effectiveness of the Peace Corps and domestic voluntary service programs.

With Mrs. Nixon now ineligible, the President designated Frank D. Stella of Detroit, Mich., to serve as temporary chairman until the council meets to elect a permanent chairman. Stella was one of the members announced Sunday.

95-Year-Old Still On Road

MURPHY . . . and his tools.

When George H. Murphy drove his first Model T, it wasn't an antique. It was the real thing.

Now, more than 60 years later, when most cars of the early 1900 vintage have come to rest in museums and showrooms, Murphy, at age 95, is still on the road.

He admits to limiting his jaunts to daylight driving around town, but it still gets him where he wants to go.

Although he's approaching the hundred mark, this nonagenarian who lives alone prides himself on his independence and ability to take care of himself.

Curled up pretzel-like on his sofa and puffing away on a cigar, Murphy looks more like a grandfather than the great-grandfather of six that he is.

An Illinois native, Murphy came to Nebraska to work for the railroad until his retirement in 1949.

With time on his hands, Murphy has turned to carpentry which he modestly says he "just picked up."

His home at 2917 L, in which he's lived since 1920, is filled with his handwork, from extensive kitchen cupboards to a bedroom addition and carpenter's tool cabinets in the basement.

Less demanding but equally fine in workmanship are the gavels, mailboxes, birdhouses and rocking horses that Murphy makes as gifts for his friends.

Despite all his work in wood, Murphy says that "making friends is my hobby."

"If you'd stick around long enough," he told this reporter, "I'd make a friend out of you."

Holiday Death Toll Reaches 377

By The Associated Press

The holiday death toll on the nation's highways climbed above the 300 mark Tuesday but the fatality rate was slowed by the gasoline shortage and numbing cold in the Midwest.

At 9 p.m. CST there were 377 reported fatalities during the holiday tabulating period which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

The National Safety Council had predicted between 470 and 570 deaths during the four-day holiday period which ended at midnight Tuesday.

Meyer Says Rule Change Could Endanger Informant

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Atty. Gen. Clarence A.H. Meyer has expressed strong opposition to a proposed change in Nebraska's rules of evidence which he said could endanger the lives of informants or else force the state to drop charges against suspected criminals.

In a letter to a court official, Meyer said the proposed revision making it easier for defense attorneys to learn the identity of informants in effect enacts substantive criminal law.

"I feel something like this should be debated before the Legislature," Meyer said in a subsequent interview.

Under the current rules of evidence, Meyer said, the prosecution cannot use evidence from privileged sources or else must reveal the source's identity only if it can be shown that the identity of the informant is absolutely essential to the defense.

'Necessary Testimony'

Under the proposed change, as prepared by a special committee of the Nebraska Supreme Court, the identity of an informant cannot be kept a secret by police when there is "a reasonable probability that the informer can give testimony necessary to a fair determination of a material issue in the case."

The proposed rules also provide for "limited disclosure" of the informant's identity to a judge, who can then determine whether it should be brought up in open court. The rules suggest this avoids any serious impairment of secrecy while affording the defendant a substantial measure of protection against arbitrary police action.

Meyer said this "relaxation" of confidential communication privilege would make it more difficult for law enforcement officials to use undercover agents.

Informants, he said, are used mostly in cases involving so-called victimless crimes, such as drugs, gambling and prostitution.

Killings Feared

To force the prosecution to reveal informants' identities unnecessarily in open court could force the state to drop charges to avoid having informants killed.

"We don't want our informants killed," Meyer said.

Meyer said he is not the only one who doesn't like that particular section. Congress, he said, has stricken that entire provision from revised rules of evidence pending before it.

The purpose of the revised rules of evidence, according to court officials, is to bring a degree of uniformity to the various state and federal legal procedures. Nebraska Supreme Court Justice Paul White said portions of the rule can be adopted on the initiative of the Supreme Court while others will have to be approved by the Legislature.

White said it will be some time before the rules are ready for action by the court and the Legislature.

Golda Meir's Labor Party Polls 39.9% Of Vote

(c) New York Times News Service

Tel Aviv — Israeli Premier Golda Meir's ruling Labor Party lost 13% of its support in Monday's parliamentary elections, according to unofficial returns, but still remained the only party potentially capable of forming a coalition government. The Labor Party reportedly polled 39.9% of the vote, down from the 46.22% polled by the party in the 1969 elections.

New York Mayor Inaugurated

New York — Abraham D. Beame was inaugurated as the city's 104th mayor in ceremonies devoid of pomp and with a strong flavor of a Democratic revival meeting. In his 12-minute inaugural address, Beame called for unity and pledged integrity and efficiency. (More on Page 2.)

Shooting Incidents Increase

Cairo — The U.N. command in the Middle East reported a sharp increase in shooting incidents along the Israeli-Egyptian cease-fire line the day before the Israeli parliamentary elections. A U.N. spokesman in Cairo said there were a total of 72 incidents on Sunday, including 22 outbreaks of sometimes intense artillery fire. (More on Page 3.)

Queen Honors Architect Whitelaw

London — Queen Elizabeth cited William Whitelaw, the architect of the compromise settlement in Northern Ireland, by making him a Companion of Honor in the traditional New Year's honor list.

French Get Tough

Paris — In a move apparently reflecting a new tough French policy against Basque militants in the aftermath of the assassination of Spanish Premier Luis Carrero Blanco, six Basque refugees were rounded up in the French Basque region and sent under police guard to live in northern France, far from the Spanish border.

Nixon Violated Law—White House

San Clemente — The White House said that President Nixon had violated the law when he named his wife to serve on the new National Voluntary Service Advisory Council. The White House statement, which did not explain how the illegality was discovered, said the law prohibited a President from appointing a relative to a government position. (More on Page 1.)

Price Of Tuna Disputed

San Diego — A dispute over the price canners will pay for the 1974 tuna catch kept the American tuna fishing fleet from participating in the traditional New Year's Day opening of the internationally controlled Yellowfin fishing season in the eastern Pacific. Fleet owners rejected an offer of $556 a ton, $55 more than the 1973 price, and were demanding some $675 a ton — a level a canners' spokesman called "utterly unrealistic."

Chinese Military Leader Demoted

Hong Kong — In a move apparently representing a highly significant assertion of control by Peking over regional military authority, the Communist leadership has transferred one of China's most entrenched military leaders to command of a less important region. With the transfer, Hsu Shih-yu, a Politburo member, will move from the Nanking military region, where he has held power since 1954, to the Canton military region.

Drivers Find Gas Pumps Locked

By United Press International

Motorists who ignored repeated warnings not to venture out New Year's Day found gas pumps locked in most parts of the country. Some service stations whose tanks had not run dry were legally charging up to an extra 1½ cents a gallon for fuel.

Across the nation, traffic was "extremely light" and the New Year greeting was pretty much the same: "Sorry. No gas."

In New Jersey not a single filling station was reported open Tuesday. Police most places reported they were busy taking calls from desperate drivers out of gas and service stations said they don't expect fresh deliveries until Wednesday, at least.

For the second time this week death resulted from an auto accident in which a can of gasoline was being carried. Mrs. Judith Kathleen Bovard, 25, of Lake Jackson, Tex., was killed but her husband escaped with only slight injuries when their car bust into flames after it hit a trestle Tuesday. Four persons died in a similar accident in Harrisburg, Ill., Sunday.

And an increasing complaint of gas pump attendants was abuse from drivers fed up with waiting in line and still not getting tanks filled.

Raleigh, N.C., police said station owner Kenneth M. Whitely complained a Cadillac broke into a line of waiting cars and when he refused to serve him ahead of other drivers, the driver gunned the car and hit him as it pulled away. He was bruised.

The Connecticut State Department of Consumer Affairs said it had received many calls about the problem and had advised owners not to carry guns or knives but to report abusive motorists to the police.

No. 1 priority went to emergency vehicles to allow them unlimited supplies; No. 2 stickers for commercial vehicles; No. 3 for passenger cars who were able to buy up to 10 gallons, and a limit of five gallons for those who just drive in.

Only about 10 of Connecticut's 200 service stations were open Tuesday, after police earlier ordered some closed down because the lines of autos waiting for gas were too long and created a traffic hazard.

The Motor Club of America and the New Jersey Auto Club both reported many calls from motorists out of gas; but "not a place open" to send them to. An auto club spokesman said callers were referred to local police.

Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Texas reported most gas stations closed.

In Illinois, only about one station was open for the entire Chicago area, the Gasoline Dealers Association reported, while about five were open in Galesburg.

Car-conscious Los Angeles, where auto club surveys earlier found almost 40% of gas stations planned to open, instead found itself with only about 10% pumping gas. The California Highway Patrol issued a plea: "Don't drive."

California's Rep. Teague Dies At 64

SANTA PAULA, Calif. (AP) — Rep. Charles M. Teague, who had represented this Southern California city in Congress since 1954, is dead of a heart attack aides said Tuesday. He was 64.

Teague's body was discovered Tuesday morning by his son Alan, who is mayor of Santa Paula. Teague had died sometime during the night Monday, aides said.

Teague was the ranking Republican on the House Agricultural Committee and also was on the Veterans Affairs Committee.

Teague had been in good health recently, an aide said.

Teague's death leaves three vacancies in the 435-member House. The others were caused by Ford's resignation to accept the vice presidency and the death of Rep. John P. Saylor, R-Pa., last fall.

New York's Mayor Takes Oath

NEW YORK (AP) — Abraham D. Beame bustled into City Hall through the back door Tuesday, swore in 21 officials of his new administration and then came out the front door to take his own oath of office as New York's 104th mayor.

"We intend to make our administration a model of honest government," Beame told about 1,500 persons gathered in cold, drizzly weather. "We intend to be open in our dealings; we intend to honor our promises and give the people a real voice in their own destiny."

Beame, hatless and overcoated, was preceded out of City Hall by former Mayor and Mrs. John V. Lindsay, who were applauded warmly.

The city's first Jewish mayor, Beame took the oath on a silver-bound Bible from Israel, a gift from friends. Surrogate Nathan R. Sobel, a friend of 50 year's standing, administered the oath.

The ceremony was a public formality, as the 67-year-old Brooklyn Democrat had taken the same oath, before Sobel and upon the same Bible, in his apartment Monday night.

Lindsay, 52, had served champagne and eggnog at parties in last-day celebrations Monday at City Hall and described his emotions as mixed. "It's been a long eight years," he said.

Bitter Cold Front Brings Record 45 Below Reading

World News

By United Press International

A Siberian cold front, packing temperatures down to 45 below zero, surged deep into the United States Tuesday and toppled New Year's Day cold weather records dating back before the turn of the century.

A major winter storm, the first of the New Year, boiled up in the Southwest and headed eastward along the snow-heaped path of several lusty late 1973 storms.

Harsh cold dropped temperatures far below zero from the Rockies to the Great Lakes and from the Canadian border to Missouri and Kansas.

Holiday motorists in Minnesota, the nation's "ice box" with temperatures down to 45 below zero at the lakeside community of McGrath, waited as long as eight hours for tow trucks to come and start balky cars.

More than 200 passengers shivered aboard Amtrak's Denver Zephyr when it was stalled for 13 hours — part of the time without heat — in Galesburg, Ill. Temperatures of 12 below zero snapped a utility pole and left the southeastern part of Brown County in Western Illinois without electricity.

Three teen-agers died when their cars collided early New Year's Day with another automobile filled with teen-agers on a snow-packed highway near Harper, Kan.

The new winter storm spread snow from southern Nevada to Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. Heavy snow warnings were up, with some mountainous sections of Colorado warned to expect 8 inches or more. The snow was expected to spread across much of the Midwest Wednesday.

The National Weather Service said the bitter cold came from a cold front which was born in northern Russia, moved into Alaska and northern Canada almost a week ago and warmed "a little" before it dipped into the United States.

Minnesotans tended to dispute the idea that the front "warmed" even slightly. Residents of McGrath, on the east shore of Minnesota's Lake Mille Lacs, reported it was 45 below zero. Roseau and Baudette, Minn., each recorded minus 42.

Long-Term Effect Of Pollution On Oceans Is Being Assessed

©The New York Times

New York — Seven oceanographic institutions have joined in a multimillion-dollar international effort to assess the long-term effect on the oceans of pollution levels so low they are permissible in drinking water, yet are high enough, some fear, to wreak havoc in the seas.

Six plastic bags, each filled with 2,350 tons of sea water, are to be suspended next September in Saanich Inlet off Vancouver Island in British Columbia. The bags, shaped like inverted silos, are 33 feet wide and 98 feet deep. They then will be stocked with tiny marine plants and animals, and pollutants, such as heavy metals, pesticides and petroleum products, will be introduced into each bag. Similar experiments will be conducted in Loch Ewe on the coast of Scotland.

The six-year project is part of the International Decade of Ocean Exploration. The National Science Foundation has awarded grants for the first two years of the study totaling $1,276,400. The grants will go to the four participating American institutions — the Scripps Institution of Oceanography of the University of California in San Diego, the Skidaway Institution of Oceanography of the University System of Georgia in Savannah, the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in Woods Hole, Mass., and the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science of the University of Miami. The project's total cost is estimated at $6 million.

Quarter-scale models of the plastic bags, or "marine test tubes," were tested last summer in Saanich Inlet, according to a report by the University of California in San Diego.

Some fears have been expressed that destruction of the drifting plant life of the oceans by pollution will eliminate a major means for replenishing the oxygen of the atmosphere. Even partial elimination of such plants would undermine the food chain that supports the forms of marine life on which much of mankind is dependent.

The pollution levels, according to the California report, will not exceed those considered safe for drinking water by the World Health Organization.

The drifting, largely microscopic life of the sea, known collectively as plankton, includes both plants and animals. The bags of water these organisms will be cultured in will be isolated from the surrounding sea but will be open to the air. The bags will be suspended from a floating framework formed in a honeycomb pattern.

Small-scale studies of the effects of pollution on marine plants from off San Diego and on algae from Saanich Inlet are being conducted as prelude to the main experiment.

Italian Jet Hits House; 38 Killed

Turin, Italy (AP) — A twin-engine Italian jetliner carrying 42 persons crashed and caught fire on New Year's Day while approaching Turin airport in fog and rain. Police said 38 persons were killed.

The Fokker F28 of the domestic airline Itavia struck a house under construction and slammed to the ground near a farmhouse, airport police said.

Flames immediately engulfed the plane, trapping most of those on board, they added.

"It was foggy; I was in the front section," survivor Enrico Isoni said from his hospital bed. "Suddenly the plane tipped to the right and we hit something. Then it was smoke all over. I don't remember much else."

Isoni's condition was listed as good. Police identified the other survivors as the 27-year-old mechanic, Giampaolo Sciarra, and two other passengers, Eliana Cotza and her 19-year-old son Pietro.

They were is serious condition.

'Happiness Is ...A Snowflake'

. . . Float Snows Rose Parade

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A float called "Happiness Is . . . a Snowflake" won the Sweepstakes award Tuesday at the 85th annual Tournament of Roses parade, but for more than a million spectators, happiness was the dry weather that followed a night of rain.

A downpour drenched many of the estimated 50,000 persons who camped along the parade route during the night, but streets were nearly dry by the time the nationally televised parade started. Temperatures fell to the low 40s during the night.

In all, some 1.5 million persons lined the streets to watch the procession of 60 flowered floats and 21 marching bands.

The Sweepstakes winner, in competition among non-commerical sponsors, was entered by the City of St. Louis, Mo. It was drawn by the famed Clydesdale horses and depicted a snowy winter scene with four icy trees, falling snow and skaters on a real ice pond. The float featured 10,000 white roses, baby's breath, Queen Anne's lace and starburst chrysanthemums.

The grand prize, awarded for the best commercial float, went to Eastman Kodak for "Happiness Is . . . Love." It featured seven fountains, stereophonic music and two huge sculptured cupid figures holding a giant basket of cascading flowers. The water patterns changed in time with the music while a concealed atomizer device sprayed rose-scented perfume into the air.

The theme prize was awarded to the Cal Poly Universities at Pomona, Calif. and San Luis Obispo, Calif. for "Happiness Is . . . Finding a Friend." It showed a little girl sitting on a tree stump serving tea to a giant but gentle dragon.

The procession of floats took its theme from the title of the book "Happiness Is a Warm Puppy," featuring the "Peanuts" cartoon strip characters. The "Peanuts" creator, Charles Shultz, was grand marshal.

Police said they made more than 180 arrests before the procession began. The charges involved investigation of offenses ranging from public drinking to felony burglary.

A 22-year-old man was stabbed to death along the parade route about 1 a.m. following a brief scuffle with a group of juveniles, police reported. Dennis Allen of Canoga Park, Calif., was killed and his 31-year-old brother, Raymond, was seriously injured in the incident, which officers said began when someone in the group of youths threw a beer bottle at the younger Allen.

Fire In U.S. Kill 11,900

BOSTON (AP) — Fire in the United States in 1973 Killed about 11,900 peiole, nearly the same number killed in fires last year, says the National Fire Protection Association.

An estimated 6,600 died in dwelling fires — about the same number as each of the two previous years — but property losses for the year of $3.1 billion were about $150 million more than in 1972, the association said.

Scandals Becloud Nixon '73 Gains

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
(c) Washington Star-News

Laguna Beach, Calif. — Seculed at his estate overlooking the Pacific Ocean, President Nixon seemingly had little to celebrate as he marked the end of the year in which he had hoped to ride the crest of his overwhelming re-election victory in 1972.

Meeting with a group of congressmen last month, Nixon said that 1973, at least since March when the Watergate cover-up began to unravel, had been "pure hell."

The Watergate affair dominated the White House in 1973, blocking many of the administration's objectives and obscuring its accomplishments.

"If it wasn't for Watergate, this would have been a pretty good year," press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler remarked recently.

Another ranking White House official listed the year's accomplishments during a weekend interview:

—There has been "major progress in the fight against inflation."

—The country's balance of payments is in surplus.

—Farm income is at its highest level ever, while government subsidies have been sharply reduced.

—Employment is at an all-time high.

—A good start has been made on Nixon's revenue-sharing program.

—"A 10-year war has been concluded in a way in which no American has to be self-conscious about."

—For the first time in 25 years of Middle East strife, Arab and Israeli delegations are directly negotiating.

The official was emphatic in his insistence that those achievements made 1973 a good year despite "the Watergate disaster, which it goes without saying none of us is proud of and none of us takes any comfort from."

But a number of problems — the energy crisis in particular — threaten to turn even this list to ashes in the new year.

The cost-of-living figures seem to refute any talk about progress in the fight against inflation. Since 1969, Nixon's first year in office, the cost of food, clothing and other consumer items has increased almost 30% — the worst sustained siege of inflation since the government began to keep detailed records.

In the last 12 months, prices rose about 7%.

Prices Change

LONDON (AP) — Britons find French delicacies like snails and frog legs less expensive since Britain joined the European Common Market. But such popular foods as New Zealand lamb and Canadian sardines are more expensive, because of new duties on imports from British Commonwealth countries.

Mideast Clashes Reach New High

By The Associated Press

The United Nations peacekeeping forces reported on Tuesday a record number of cease-fire violations along the tense Suez Canal front. The U.N. commander sought to preserve the truce in talks with senior Egyptian and Israeli leaders.

The U.N. spokesman reported 72 cease-fire violations for the Monday reporting period, a record. The previous was 71. He said preliminary reports for Tuesday showed fewer clashes.

Lt. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo of Finland met for an hour in Cairo with Egyptian War Minister Ahmed Ismail and his chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Mohamed Abdul Ghani Gamazy.

Then he flew to Tel Aviv for talks with Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Davan and the Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar.

The Israelis in Tel Aviv released no information on what was said, but the military command said an Israeli soldier was wounded as gunfire and mortar skirmishes flared again along the Suez lines.

The spokesman said clashes erupted west of Ismailia in the central canal sector, near the Bitter Lakes farther south, and east of the waterway.

Syrian gunners opened light weapons fire near Bet Jon on the Golan Heights line, he claimed. No casualties were reported.

With Israeli elections out of the way, Egypt expects some quick progress in Geneva. But one source with access to senior leaders described the outlook as gloomy.

Egypt Aims To Bring Israel To 'Standstill'

By United Press International

Egypt's chief of army operations said Tuesday his government hopes to bring Israel's economy to a "total standstill" by forcing continual mobilization of Israeli troops.

The military leader, Maj. Gen. Hassan Greitly, said Egyptian forces were ready to resume fighting while at the same time watching for progress at the Geneva peace talks, which resume Wednesday after a recess for the Israeli elections.

The top assistant to guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat has suggested that the Palestinian Commando Movement should attend the Geneva Conference if invited.

Salah Khalaf, known by the guerrilla name of Abou Iyad, and number two man in the Al Fatah guerrilla group, told a rally at Beirut Arab University, "Isn't the peace conference a conference for all Arabs? We Palestinians should not look at it from a parochial angle, but rather from a pan-Arab angle."

Greitly, in a Cairo speech to emigrants revisiting their homeland, said the Egyptian aim "is to place Israeli forces in a situation where they need to mobilize all Israeli youth. This will bring the Israeli economy to a total standstill."

"The war has not yet ended," he said. "Our forces are in a state of full alert."

Greitly declared, "Diplomatic and military efforts are going on side by side and the Egyptian armed forces stand as one man awaiting orders to complete the mission."

A behind-the-scenes debate on whether the guerrilla organizations should support the Geneva Conference has been raging for weeks among commando factions.

Those who oppose participation argue that a negotiated settlement would fall short of the Palestinian aim of recovering the whole of Palestine, including that part of it which presently forms the state of Israel.

On Dec. 17 George Habash, secretary general of the Marxist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), said his guerrilla group rejected the Geneva Conference as a "disgraceful meeting."

Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), the guerrilla political arm, has avoided taking a definite stand.

Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh, in a New Year's message to the diplomatic corps in Beirut, said the Palestinian refugee problem should be resolved according to the principles of the 25-year-old U.N. Declaration of Human Rights.

"There was a day when Israel occupied lands by force and evicted the people thereon, by force. The occupation and the eviction continue, despite every measure and every right," Franjieh said.

Indonesia Isn't Playing Politics With Oil

©The New York Times

Jakarta, Indonesia — Indonesia, now the world's 12th largest producer of oil and moving up steadily, has been doing her best to succeed in business without getting involved in today's oil politics.

So far, she has succeeded without a hitch — raising production as new wells continue to gush in and raising prices as world demand increases. The two chief customers for Indonesia's low-sulphur, and therefore coveted low-pollutant, oil remain the United States and Japan, both of which have been affected by the restriction of Arab oil shipments.

Although 90% of the more than 120 million people of this Southeast Asian archipelago nation are nominally Moslem and the government has supported the Arab cause in the Middle East, that support has not been devout.

Traditionally, Indonesia has not played Islamic politics. In 1971, instead of taking Pakistan's side in the dispute with India over what is now Bangladesh, Jakarta offered its services as mediator, though to no avail.

More recently, Foreign Minister Adam Malik last month cautioned the Arab nations that while Indonesia could understand the cutback in oil shipments as a weapon against Israel and her supporters, it could boomerang if continued indefinitely. Citing the inevitable higher costs of shipping and all kinds of crucial imports, he said: "If it is imposed too long, the whole world, including the Arabs themselves, will be harmed. It is like a two-edged knife."

The Arabs are touchy about what the Indonesians might do to undercut the embargo. And Jakarta is sensitive to these reactions. Last month, when Ibnu Sutowo, the head of Pertamina — the quasi-autonomous state agency that directs all oil operations in Indoneisa — made a speech in New York urging the United States to look increasingly to Indonesia for oil production and investment, chargrined Arab nations asked for clarification.

Jakarta quickly assured them, and the rest of the world, in public statements that it was in no way going to try to thwart the Arab policy.

Still, the rumors persist in Jakarta that some additional supplies are in fact going to the United States and to the Netherlands, and given the secrecy of the American oil companies, the dominant producers in Indonesia, there is no satisfactory way to check out these reports.

Nevertheless, it is virtually impossible that large amounts of oil could be involved. Nearly all the 1.4 million barrels of "sweet" crude per day that the country produces have already been committed, by earlier long-term contracts. To either Japan or the United States.

The only uncommitted oil is some of the new crude being found on the islands of Indonesia and in offshore waters, and while these strikes occur regularly, it would take a great many new wells to produce an amount that would make a meaningful dent in the present American oil deficit.

Variety Of Forces Push Fuel Costs Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A variety of foreign and domestic economic pressures are working to drive the price of gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel upward by as much as 10 cents a gallon by March 1, a high-ranking energy official said Tuesday.

Charles R. Owens, deputy assistant administrator of the Federal Energy Office (FEO), also said there is no reason to believe the price of gasoline will level off by March 1.

In an interview, Owens said the most immediate cause of the price spiral is the 1.5 cent a gallon increase announced Monday to account for rising expenses not directly related to the fuel shortage.

Beyond that, he said several increases disclosed Monday and Tuesday in several oil-producing nations will add four to five cents to the per-gallon price of fuel and heating oil.

In Libya, diplomatic sources reported a boost from $9 to $15.67 in the tax reference price of each barrel of crude oil. The tax reference price, while not the actual cost charged oil companies for their crude oil, does provide a measure of how much they actually pay for their oil.

Later this week, Owens said, the FEO will allow retail gas stations and heating oil outlets to increase their price an additional cent or cent and a half to account for the impact of fuel shortages on their operations.

With less gasoline being allocated by Owens' office, the total volume of gasoline sold is declining, driving down the income of corner gas stations. Unequal distribution of heating oil has also created shortages for some distributors, similarly decreasing how much cash they take in from their customers.

Over the next 60 days, Owens said, an earlier $1 per barrel price increase permitted oil definers last month will be felt at the retail level.

All of those factors will total about 10 cents per gallon by early March, said Owens, who previously administered oil prices with the Cost of Living Council.

Asked what happens to gasoline prices beyond March, Owens said, "Well then we're getting into the high-demand vacation season, and there's just no predicting the supply situation then."

He indicated further gasoline price hikes are likely, though declining to make a flat prediction. "The outlook is unclear," he said.

There is disagreement within the energy office on whether rising gasoline prices will actually encourage people to travel less, thus increasing the supply for the summer.

Privately, one energy official said "the experience so far is that people will pay whatever price the government allows." He cited the example of motorists lining up Christmas Day to pay 99.9 cents per gallon at one station in New York.

Owens said the nationwide average price for gasoline last New Year was 38.9 cents a gallon. On Dec. 21, it was 43.3 and the anticipated March 1 price at the pump is 53.3 cents a gallon.

211.7 Million People In U.S.

Washington (UPI) — With the start of the new year, the Census Bureau estimated that there were 211.7 million persons living in the United States.

The total represented a 1.5 million net gain-or 0.7% — over the beginning of 1973.

The 1973 increase was lower than in 1972 when the population grew by 1.6 million and was less than half of the record 1956 increase of 3.1 million.

The net gain resulted from 3.2 million births, 2 million deaths and 350,000 immigrants.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

When Gov. Nelson Rockefeller resigned his high New York post, he said he would pursue, among other things, work with the Commission On Critical Choices For Americans. As the world faces another year, these critical choices will loom large before it.

There may be mass confusion today as to the extent of the energy crisis we face and what to do about it but there isn't any question that patterns of the past are going to have to give way to something else. We know that, overall, the U.S. is consuming far more energy than it is able to provide itself.

We know that there is no way to expand the supply in sufficient degree to allow for consumption to continue with the same trends as the past. Our country faces what seems to be a certain evolution and one that will shake the foundations of the nation.

Before it is all over, we will probably have evolved into a whole new way of life but we have no idea at all at this time what kind of life it will be. Our private lives and our economy have operated on a false assumption of plenty and it is inevitable that this change.

The evolution will not be an easy one because people do not adjust easily to such drastic changes. We have become accustomed to and comfortable with the values we have today and there will be uncertainty as we seek to alter them.

We simply have no idea what our society may look like 10 or 20 years from now but we would be amazed if it were not substantially different. Nor do we know of anyone in any area of things who can say with certainty how Americans will be living in the next generation.

But an industrial empire that thrives on constant change and on more and more consumer consumption cannot go on. A life style based on an inexhaustible supply of natural resources is one that simply is not in the cards.

Overall, we would look for some kind of move toward a little greater collectivism of society. Rather than spreading out as we have done so physically in recent years, we will tend to come more together for the sake of efficiency and economy.

A more cooperative arrangement tends to conserve energy in all ways and on all fronts. It reduces travel needs and it utilizes better such things as heating and air-conditioning. Of course, it represents a more economical use of our land.

We do not mean that we will all be crowded into small areas and living a communal life but we will tend to move in some way in that direction. We will not necessarily regress, either, in our material possessions but we will have to change.

Certainly, the automobile as it now stands is going to have less of a role in our lives. The emphasis in the future will be on economy of operation rather than size and/or comfort. Much more selective use of the auto is bound to be a part of things in the future.

In short, we have come to live rather extravagantly and that is a luxury we are going to have to forego. If we are intelligent enough, we should be able to come around to a way of life that is at least as rewarding as what we have at the present but it will not be the same.

Technological changes will not preserve for us our past but may contribute substantially to the solutions for tomorrow. The important thing now is that we realize what has happened and that we do need to make the kind of critical choices that the Rockefeller commission will be seeking to examine.

The big mistake would be to think that we can just take it easy for awhile and finally end up doing everything again in the same old way.

'You Know What? I'm Tired Of Him And All His Crises'

Senators' Pay A Drawback

State Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell, who last year changed parties to become a Democrat, is being encouraged to join what should become the strongest Democratic team in years in an organized assault on state and national offices long held by Republicans.

Anderson's name is mentioned in connection with the auditor, treasurer and secretary of state positions at the statehouse, partisan posts which the voters will fill this election year.

But it is Anderson's present inclination to remain in his Unicameral seat at least for the three remaining years of his term.

The Legislature, Anderson feels, is where the action is. It is where really important work is done.

It is an oft-told tale, but Anderson also feels that the meager pay Nebraskans allow their legislators may limit his service there. He and his family probably will not be able to put up with the financial sacrifice. And if that is the case, at the end of his term, the Legislature, his district and the state will lose the services of one of Nebraska's most promising lawmakers.

It would be easier on oneself and one's family to win election as auditor, treasurer or secretary of state, for example. Who ever is elected to those three posts at the next election will, starting in 1975, be paid $25,000 per year. They are important jobs, but the occupants of those offices do not formulate policy or shape society as is the case with legislators.

And members of the Legislare — where the actionis — are paid $400 per month, or $4,800 annually.

Anderson's lament is shared by any number of incumbents and others who would aspire to legislative service if only they could afford it.

There is a constitutional amendment on the state ballot in May which provides for a salary increase for senators which would reward them with a more acceptable $8,100 annually. The amendment should be passed to put the pay more in line with the services rendered. But Nebraskans, who seemingly are not concerned when the Legislature raises the pay of other elected state officeholders to $25,000 and up; are notorious penny-pinchers when it comes to senatorial salaries. Something akin to Anderson's lament will probably be heard a year from now.

Promise Of A Changing Skyline

Although the new year gets off to a less than auspicious beginning what with the fuel shortage, predictions of a recession, the fate of President Nixon hanging in the balance and the bottom dropping out of the livestock market, there is physical evidence around Lincoln which can serve as a cheerful reminder that the nation hasn't completely ground to a halt and that hopefully one day soon the topsy-turvy economy will right itself.

Lincoln's building boom spurred on by both government and private investors — should take palpable shape in 1974 with the completion or near-completion of such edifices as the Lincoln Hilton, the University of Nebraska fieldhouse and multiple use complex at the state fairgrounds, the new federal office building and Lincoln's new airport terminal building. A host of other privat and public building endeavors are underway as well.

The state, with the City of Lincoln's cooperation, is moving ahead with the state office building. Downtown interests are assembling a plan for major renovation and hopefully a cooperative effort to build a performing arts center will be among those projects considered.

The changing skyline should remind Lincolnites of the economic vitality of our system. And in thses times, the reminder is welcome.

The Office Pool

Washington — Presidential speech-writer Pat Buchanan and I used to make a series of bets on predictions at year-end, opening the envelope the following year to see who had been the more delphic of oracles.

In those days of wine and hubris, we would guess at everything from who would be the first cabinet officer to leave (historically, attorneys general usually left first) to the point-spread in Gallup trial heats between the president and that of the democratic frontrunner. Happy little items were included: I lost four dollars in four years betting Nixon would become a grandfather.

I shall not now abandon my old job of drawing up the year-end White House pool, since the state of the betting casts an eerie light on the State of the Union:

1. The first world leader to step down or be forced out in 1974 will be (a) Pompidou (b) Brezhnev (c) Nixon (d) Meo (e) Heath (f) Brandt. (Guess these in the proper order and become national security adviser.)

2. Republican congressional losses in the 1974 elections will be (a) mild-fewer than 10 seats (b) rough — 10 to 30 seats (c) catastrophic — more than 30 seats.

3. Democratic front-runner in the Gallup presidential-preference poll at year-end will be (a) Edward Kennedy (b) any other Democrat.

4. Republican Front-runner for president in 1976 will be (a) Ford (b) Reagan (c) Rockefeller (d) Richardson (e) somebody else.

5. Rate of 1974 inflation as measured by the GNP deflator will be (a) less than 6% (b) between 6% and 8% (c) over 8%.

6. Gross National Product will grow next year at the rate of (a) under 2% (b) between 2 and 4% (c) over 4%.

7. The Dow-Jones averages will close next year (a) above (b) below its close this year. (Every month or so for more than a year, President Nixon would call me to ask, "How much was the Dow-Jones when I told everybody to buy stocks?" I would tell him it had been 740, and it always made him feel better.

8. Meausred against the mark and the yen, the U.S. dollar will be (a) stronger (b) weaker.

9. At year-end 1974, the Suez Canal will be (a) open (b) still closed.

10. Mideast peace talks will have accomplished (a) separation of forces only (b) an interim agreement between Egypt and Israel (c) a comprehensive settlement.

11. The energy crisis next year will be (a) bad enough to require rationing (b) about the same as now (c) replaced by some other crisis.

12. The next war will break out in (a) Africa (b) Mideast (c) South Asia (d) Indian subcontinent (e) Iberian Peninsula (f) no place all year.

13. President Nixon will be (a) impeached and convicted (b) impeached but not convicted (c) neither impeached nor convicted but censured (d) resigned (e) unimpeached, uncensured, still president, making a comeback in the polls.

14. The President (a) will (b) will not be a grandfather by the end of 1974. (I will keep betting this until I win; but will the grandfather be president?)

☆ ☆ ☆

My own fearless forecast, which in the past has erred on the upbeat side, runs A, B, A, A, B, B, A, A, A, B, C, E, E, A. But the purpose of this office pool is not to stimulate intra-office wagering nor to provide critics of these essays with next year's Christmas cheer.

The purpose is to show the range of possibilities open in just a few areas, and to suggest that across-the-board anxiety is as misplaced as wall-to-wall optimism.

The only certainty in any of the foregoing is that the "pool" overlooks those accidents, quirks of fate and suddenly shifting forces that have characterized the last few years.

Playing the pool at the end of 1971, for example, who would have foreseen the snowballing of detente, the selection of McGovern, the startling removal of his running mate, and the Nixon victory in 49 states? And at the end of 1972, who would have looked into 1973 and forecast the Watergate hearings, the existence of White House tapes, the crash of Agnew, the retelling of the oil saga as the Arabian Nights, and the falling mute of the silent majority?

On the basis of that experience, and in the face of the remarkable jaggedness of the trend lines of recent years — why do so many of us now assume, or dread, an inevitability to the trends of the last few months?

It is true that we can rely on a series of indictments and trials, and on an immediate series of shortages and price rises; but we can also rely on the exaggeration of our difficulties and a sense of worriment that — in next year's retrospect — may turn out to be undue.

The end of a year is a good time to remember the inexorabilities of the unexpected and to attend to the likelihood of the rise of surprising counterforces. The unforseen usually happens; in the last few years, it has not failed to happen.

Ahead lie first-hand revelations and historic firsts; second thoughts and second winds; third-world influences and third-degree pressures. Intermixed with acts of God and reactions of men, the brew of events that will stimulate life in 1974 must give pause to those who confidently plot our course over the cliff — and must give heart to those who play for breaks and hope for the best.

Energy Crisis May Prove An Aid To Environment

WASHINGTON — "There goes the environment" has been a favorite remark in the aftermath of President Nixon's various energy messages. Whether uttered in sadness or satisfaction, this comment reflects the popular cynicism that nearly everyone is an environmentalist until the lights go out or the heat goes off.

Widespread opinion holds that the energy crisis may inflict a coup de grace upon the environmental movement, already faltering since its giddy debut on Earth Day 1970. As one indicator, Environment magazine's November 1973 issue points out that at least a half-dozen environmental periodicals begun in the past three years have folded.

Rumblings of an anti-ecology backlash grow louder as factories around the nation begin to announce closings or layoffs and industry spokesmen warn darkly of the "ripple effect" that could sweep the entire economy if major manufacturers are forced to curtail production. Government officials who downplay the doomsday forecasts are scoffed at.

Will the environment be sacrificed on the altar of energy? In the short-run, more coal will be burned, much of it strip-mined, more nuclear plants will be built, more offshore and shale oil deposits will be leased, more pipelines laid.

But for the long-run, there are strong indications that environmentalism, although stunned, isn't dead yet. In fact, the energy crisis actually may benefit the environment through a kind of double reverse. Gasoline restrictions will mean less driving — and less air pollution. Heating oil reductions will dictate better home insulation and more energy-conscious architecture. Critical looks at U.S. energy consumption will encourage more recycling. The energy conservation ethic may broaden general awareness of scarcity and the need for careful husbanding of the earth's resources. The urban renaissance could get a boost as people realize the city's basic efficiency for work, shopping and entertainment.

Funny thing. All this bears striking resemblance to what many environmentalists, among others, have been urging all along. They've insisted that continued exploitation of resources, uncontrolled pollution and population, and unlimited exponential growth only guarantee that "spaceship earth" will some day self-destruct.

New converts to this view have been appearing faster than McGovern bumper stickers since Watergate. Business Week ran an editorial arguing that "the energy crisis presents an opportunity to take many rational steps the nation has so long avoided. The days of the cowboy economy are numbered."

John R. Quarles Jr., deputy administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said recently: "The prospects we face call for an era of environmental and economic reform. In the process, deeply wrenching changes must be made in our business practices, our environmental institutions, our public philosophies and our individual styles of life."

Double Standard For Agnew

NEW YORK — With no intent to violate the season of good will, it has to be asked why the State of Maryland should make futher exception in the case of Spiro T. Agnew and suspend rather than disbar him from the practice of law. He has already been shown more favor than would have been granted most high officials who did not contest a felong charge involving moral turpitude; and there is nothing in American life much more disgraceful than the double standard of Justice that Agnew wants extended to him again.

What more does the country own to Agnew, anyway? He was allowed to bargain his way out of a felong trial in return for resigning his high office; he departed government with a letter of commendation from Richard Nixon; and although out of office, he is being served by a staff of eight aides, in government quarters, to which he is driven in a government automobile, by Secret Service agents, who also guard him around the clock.

Even so, when he appealed in Maryland court for "a reasonable period of suspension," rather than disbarment, "so that at some later day I might resume my practice and attempt to bring credit upon my state and upon my profession," many Americans probably responded generously and hoped that it could be so.

The problem is that such generosity is all to routinely extended, in the American criminal justice system, to men like Spiro Agnew — to educated, affluent white with enough money or standing to hire good lawyers, and enough knowledge of the way things work to buy or bargain their way out of trouble. At the same time, generosity is just as routinely refused to the poor, the ignorant, the blacks, the ethnic group members, or to anyone without power, influence, or money.

That is the double standard Agnew asks Maryland to continue in his highly publicized case; that is the double standard that, extended to him in the soft penalty he received originally, already has caused much bitterness, derision and cynicism in the ghettoes and in the prisons.

Actually, if anything about the Agnew matter should prove beneficial, it would be for his situation to dramatize the plight of the ex-offender trying to go straight in a fearful and insensitive world. For most such persons, it is difficult to be bonded, if a prospective job requires that; many employers lump together all ex-offenders as "murderers and rapists," and reject them all; some even refuse to consider anyone for employment if the applicant has an arrest record, let alone a conviction.

If Agnew now sought a job in a bank carrying federal deposit insurance, for example, he would have to have the written consent of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, because the offense he did not contest and for which he was convicted involved a breach of trust. A man of Agnew's background and standing might obtain F.D.I.C. approval; but what about a poor black or Puerto Rican with little or no education who had served time for larceny?

A survey made for the Alliance For A Safer New York recently disclosed that in New York State — which is not untypical — ex-offenders are not allowed to work as veterinarians, dentists, doctors, pharmacists, junk dealers, auctioneers, insurance adjusters, X-ray technicians, real estate brokers, funeral home operators, and many other occupations high and low. As an example of the latter. No ex-offender is allowed to be a waiter, busboy, bellhop or even a dishwashed in any place where liquor is served.

Almost no job that requires state licensing is open to the ex-offender (although some prisons train inmates for such occupations as barbering, for which they subsequently cannot get a license. The usual result of such restrictive state laws and business policies is that the ex-offender either cannot get a job, or gets a dead-end job that gives him or her no chance ot rise and every temptation to return to crime. The A.S.N.Y. survey quoted a study showing that 62% of former inmates in federal prisons were employed in low-level service jobs and other unskilled occupations.

The painful, near-tragic irony is that a society terrified of voilent crime persists in attitudes that virtually force offenders emerging from the prisons to repeat their offenses. Yet the evidence is overwhelming that most of them would rather work, and are capable of accepting training and holding down decent jobs. But such jobs are seldom open to them, which is a primary reason why the cycle of crime goes violently on.

It would be splendid, therefore, to demand generosity for all those who run afoul of the law, pay a penalty, then seek a decent plane in society. But there is no such demand; and suspension for Agnew would be just one more example of a double standard that shames us all.

Medical Care

Lincoln, Neb.

In reply to J. J. Smith's letter in the Dec. 29 Star about medical quacks, I cannot understand her defense of the title of "doctor." There are many who have gone through the academic mills and have the bonafide title of doctor but who fail in a greater and more important manner. They forget their moral and ethical obligation to heal the sick. All they are interested in is the money they will get and whether the patient or an insurance firm, for example, will pay the most for their services or lack them.

In the old days, the doctor was probably the most important man in the community and he earned this respect in most cases as he tried to heal the sick. Today the medical profession is not that honorable. They go through medical school purely to see how quickly they can make a mint of dough and the devil with the patients. I am not speaking of the few honest, oath-keeping medical men. I truly feel sorry for them, having to be thought of with the money-hungry scoundrels. Yet they do not clean out the medical profession and get rid of this corrupt, money-hungry group — so are they as honorable as they pretend?

There was an item a few weeks ago which said that there had not been a doctor in the U.S. reprimanded for five years by any medical association. Have you recently filed a complaint with the county, state or national medical associations about a doctor who needed reminding of his oath to heal the sick and injured? You will be politely answered in a non-committal manner, and later letters will be ignored. The American Medical Association a few weeks ago sent out a press release that local and state medica associations should clean house of negligent medical doctors. That was a joke! I bet there has not been one doctor in the U.S. even spoken to about shaping up to his oath.

If J.J. Smith were carrying the scars of medical malpractice, she would not feel so defense of "bonafide" degree-holders. You see, the degree does not bring with it the automatic obedience of the medical oath to heal.

How many have already died in Lincoln because of lack of medical care, even though they were visiting a doctor's office? How many have been disabled permanently by lack of medical care in Lincoln? It is food for thought — how about trying to digest it?

The Innocent

Lincoln, Neb.

It was with horror and shame that I read about the two tragic incidents which occurred this past week. I refer to the 90-year-old couple who died of exposure because they couldn't take care of themselves when their heat was turned off. The second incident is concerned with the mother and two children who died in a fire in Omaha. The reason: They had no money to pay the electric bill and when it was turned off, they had to use candles for heat and light.

To think that this could happen in the United States, while Mr. Nixon spends countless thousands of dollars to support his buddy, Spiro Agnew, supplying him with a private limousine and a chauffeur, plus eight security men to take care of this proven criminal. It is almost unbelievable; the pity is that it is all too true.

I am livid with rage and frustration. Innocent people and children die because we don't care about them. The guilty, who should be in prison after being duly convicted, live in pampered luxury, rewarded for their crimes and immorality.

M. KOHLES

Food Production

Fairbury, Neb.

Maybe here pretty soon, people will finally wake up and realize that the high food prices are not being caused by those who produce it. If anyone would take the time to investigate what choice steers are bringing today and what they brought last summer, he would find a very significant decline in price, about $75 cwt to the current $42 cwt. And even in some cases the choice grade is not even being used.

Now look at the meat counter and you will find very little difference in the price paid last summer when the price was high on cattle and now, when it is very low.

So now we see that the farmer is not responsible for this, so that leaves the processor. In this food crisis, the farmer is not getting rich as most think, but the middle-man is taking excessive, huge profits. And it won't be long before farmers start to lock their doors on producing food. Take the cattle price, about $42 cwt. In order to break even, just break even, he must receive at least $52 cwt. With feed prices, fuel, etc. going up and the cattle price going down, not many farmers are going to stick around and lose their shirts. And if there is no food to eat, tell me, just what are the people going to do then?

Maybe it is time, indeed, that we realize that the farmer should receive what is due him. If he does not receive his dues, some very serious consequences could and will come.

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

I've been looking for a place to buy canned salmon. Can ACTION LINE find out why I can't find any in the grocery stores?

—K. N. Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to a spokesman for one local food chain, the stores are receiving only negligible amounts.

Apparently the salmon catch this year was almost non-existent.

The spokesman said he believes that some salmon has been exported to areas where food shortages exist, and his chain has been receiving only sporadic shipments.

However it is available in the store occassionally, for a price.

He noted their No. 1 can sold for $1.05 last summer, but it's now $2.79 a can.

If you're willing to pay the inflated price, your best bet would be to ask a store clerk to save some for you when the next shipment comes in.

My husband and I recently returned from a trip to Japan, but we didn't use our full return tickets. We turned them into Frontier Airline for a refund, but as yet we've not received them and the time is long past when the refunds were supposed to arrive. Can ACTION LINE find out what the delay is?

—Connie Willis, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Glen Emmons, public relations director for Frontier at Lincoln, said this is done as a courtesy to the customer when Frontier acts as an intermediary for refunds from another airline.

Emmons will be happy to trace your claim if you will call him at 477-5281. He needs your name, ticket number and the date you filed the claim.

Where did Cock Robin die?

—Nursery Rhyme Lover, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: He died in the mill pond.

The manager of Handyman Hardware, 1414 South St. was supposed to pick up a defective oven broiler that I purchased at the store. Can ACTION LINE find out why this hasn't been done?

—Exasperated, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Ray Kapke, assistant manager for the firm, regrets that you weren't more persistent in contacting them regarding their promise.

Kapke said Manager Roger Brown is at the Cotton Bowl, and probably forgot to pick up the broiler.

Brown is expected to be back Thursday and one of them will contact you before the week is out.

Let ACTION LINE know if you have any further problems in getting the broiler replaced.

I ordered two natal horoscopes in August from the American Astrological Association. After considerable correspondence one of them has arrived. Can ACTION LINE find out what happened to the second one?

—Gail Scott, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Sharon Carpenter, with the association's customer service department, said if you don't receive the second horoscope within the next 10-14 days you should write them again, or phone the organization at 216-478-2171.

The association has 56 astrologers who compute approximately 10,000 horoscopes daily (during an average week).

The "stars" say that this coupled with holiday mail problems are reasons for the delay.

I'm a working pregnant woman with a lot of bills to pay, and no medical insurance. I don't want an abortion, but how can I handle all the additional expenses this will cause?

—Worried, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Contact Birthright Inc. located at 1213 M St., or call 477-8021.

The international pro-life group operates through donations from the community and has helped many women in similar situations.

"We'll do anything we can to help this girl bring the baby to birth and even help her as long as needed afterward," said Mrs. Mary Alice Pratt, director of Birthright.

"There's never been a case yet we haven't been able to help," she added.

'Weird' Claim: Go-Go Dancer's Pasties Irritating

Hartford, Conn. (UPI) — A go-go dancer claimed her pasties irritated her skin and a woman tried to collect on her husband's insurance while he was still on his death bed.

The cases were on the year-end list of "weird" claims put out by Aetna Life and Casualty to show that all is not just dull figures in the insurance industry, a spokesman said.

The dancer lost her claim against the manufacturer of a surgical adhesive that pasties irritated her skin when she performed.

The woman who called to ask how to submit a life insurance claim on her husband was asked, "when did the insured die?"

"He isn't dead yet, but he isn't expected to live through the night so I thought I might save some time," she was quoted as replying.

In other cases, a New Jersey man was reimbursed for his eyeglasses eaten by an alligator at a zoo and a Massachusetts food market was paid for damages when a man and woman in a check-out line began a bleach-pouring melee among the store's shoppers.

Andre Previn Applies For Citizenship

LONDON (AP) — After five years as principal conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra, Andre Previn has applied for British citizenship.

The request is in line with a statement he once made: "For personal and artistic reasons, I prefer living here to anywhere else."

Husband of American actress Mia Farrow and father of their twin sons, Previn, 44, was born a German citizen in Berlin. He became a naturalized American in 1943, and later gained fame as a writer of musical scores for Hollywood films.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Montreal — The fine Malpeques oysters are on the menu at the Chateau Champlain. We live grandly on shellfish and Alsatian wine while the Canadian winter howls outside.

Another grey day. Snow swirling in the air currents. Yesterday people began piling up at Montreal's airport. The planes in the hangars, gassed and ready, but the runways deep in slush.

By late afternoon, there were hundreds stacked in the waiting room — Air Canada alone had 5,000 delayed passengers scattered around the city. Eastern had several hundred for New York. Most of them skiers from St. Sauveur, a French Canadian village of brightly-painted houses and Norman steepled churches.

By night some flights were moving. The morning paper says the airport will probably shut down again today.

* * *

For $110 you can go to school at St. Sauveur and become a girl ski instructor. The village has stoutly resisted plush hotel resorts. At the old bakery, bread comes out of the stone oven at four o'clock on the button. French is the language of St. Sauveur — those ski lessons are given in French and English.

Quebec — LaBelle Province — gives strictly equal time to each language.

"As a courtesy to the 16 million Canadians who consider English their mother tongue," said the man from the tourist board.

No question though that French is first. Stoutly defended by French Canada. "We were here first," they say. And they sign as they walk through old Quebec City and the Plains of Abraham where French Canada became English in ten minutes of dreadful cannon and musket fire.

In the countryside, the waiter can speak table English but the owner speaks only French. The desk clerk checks you into the hotel in English. The maid brings the towels in French.

In the plush bi-lingual Chateau Champlain, room service doesn't know who's calling. So she says: "Bon jour. A votre service." When you order, she comes on in English. "We are impartial," says the man from the tourist board. His name Louis Pare, and he has a slight accent in his perfect English.

* * *

The skiers, mainly from U.S. eastern states — bring another impact of English. And of all things, the Quebecois resist English speech the most.

French is the last flag of individuality. As it goes down, the province will be submerged in the deep waters of foreign language.

Traffic signs are in French and English.

Canadian money is printed in both languages on the same bill.

The big hotels speak both ways, but in the little side streets of Quebec, where Madam rents out the spare room, the sign said, "Chambres a Louer." She speaks only French and isn't about to learn anything else.

* * *

Traffic has been slowed down to ten miles an hour on the frozen highways. I canceled out on my rent car.

"Take the train," said the man from the tourist board. "It is comfortable and it always gets there."

I bought some thermal long-john underwear. The people who live here have wardrobes for this weather — the nights are 16 below. The hotel lobbies are full of people in fur hats, fur coats and fur boots.

It's a lively wintry scene. Like something out of a Russian costume movie.

County Board Apparently Loses Fight With Officials

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The Lancaster County Board appears to have lost another battle with elected officials with its October directive that the board would disapprove any claims for purchase for which purchase orders were not made out in advance.

In an attorney general's opinion handed down earlier this month in answer to questions raised by County Engineer Walter Hoppe in connection with purchase of vehicles for his office, the State Department of Justice stated that once the budget of a county office has been approved, the purchasing of items of equipment within the purview of the budget is a matter entirely within the discretion of the individual office holder.

"Under these circumstances, it would seem that the only function of the county board would be the ministerial act of approving claims for such purchases as a formality for the payment thereof," the opinion written by Assistant Attorney General C. C. Sheldon stated.

On Oct. 16, the county board approved a policy that purchase orders be made out before any equipment is purchased, and with the exception of very large orders or unusual circumstances, competitive prices from at least three suppliers must be submitted.

On large items, the board stated that bids should be taken.

Also included in the motion on the policy made by Commissioner Jan Gauger was that "county department heads' refusal to comply with the board's wishes will result in the board's disapproval of claims."

In a 1958 opinion cited by the attorney general in the opinion handed down for Hoppe, it was specifically stated that bids are not required for purchase of supplies and materials and equipment by county officers but that a county officer, if he so desires, may ask for bids to be submitted on items he wishes to purchase.

May Bind County

That opinion further states that a county officer who has had an expenditure approved in his budget may bind the county for the payment of such an item.

A county board has legal authority, according to the opinion, to set up a requisition system of purchasing by county officers if it so desires but "it cannot require that it be used as a prerequisite to the expenditure of budgeted funds, should the officers choose to disregard the system and make purchases without using the system."

The board's many attempts to wield control over elected officials in such matters as purchasing, personnel and observance of some holidays, have been thwarted with some elected officials constantly reminding board members that they are elected officials and according to law may operate their offices the way they choose as long as they perform the duties required by law.

Kreuscher Unable To Make Forecast

By The Associated Press

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher says the future is too clouded to come up with an accurate agriculture forecast in Nebraska for 1974.

Kreuscher said there were just too many question marks. He mentioned the energy shortage as one factor that keeps the future of the Nebraska farmer in doubt, and the shortage is tied directly to the doubtful availability of fertilizer and transportation.

Another concern is the foreign demand for domestic farm products. He said many countries which demand heavily on American agriculture won't be able to afford shipping costs from the United States.

That, coupled with better farm products in other countries, will cut down on export income for the Nebraska farmer.

The director also expressed concern over the strength of consumer income. He said if rollbacks continue, such as the General Motors layoff, then the consumer will have less to spend on food.

In all, Kreuscher predicted a financial slump for the Nebraska farmer in 1974. How big that slump is depends on many unanswered questions.

Hruska Said Resting Comfortably

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., was reported resting comfortably at Walter Reed Army Medical Center Tuesday as he continued to undergo observation for a possible heart condition.

Coronary tests on the 69-year-old senator were begun after physicians noted a disparity between electrocardiogram readings of his heart taken during a routine examination last Thursday and those taken a year ago.

Dean Pohlenz, an aide to Hruska, said the senator hoped to be discharged from the hospital later this week and be ready to resume legislative chores when the Senate reconvenes Jan. 21.

Marsh Elected

Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh reported Tuesday he has been elected chairman of the Midwestern Lieutenant Governors Conference.

He also has been elevated to first vice president of the 13-state Central States Corrections Association.

Happy New Year, Son!

Matthew David Garris was the first baby born in Lincoln in 1974. The 7-pound, 11-ounce boy and his mother, Mrs. David (Patricia) Garris of rural Wahoo, celebrated the new year together at 12:02 a.m. at St. Elizabeth's Health Center. Runners-up with new babies were Mr. and Mrs. James Leacock of 4624 Tipperary Trail and Mr. and Mrs. Duane Thoms of 1140 Starview Lane. (Star Photo)

Omaha's Jan. 1 Baby Arrives Half Past Hour

Omaha (AP) — The first baby to be born in the new year in Omaha arrived at 30 minutes after midnight. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Corcoran of Omaha.

The mother said her daughter would be called Dana. The baby weighed seven pounds and six ounces and was 20 inches long.

Mrs. Corcoran said she hadn't expected her child for a week yet.

Omaha Woman Is Killed In Single-Car Accident

Omaha (AP) — A one-car crash in southwest Omaha claimed one life early Tuesday. Police say the car was northbound, went out of control and hit a bridge railing.

Police reported Susan Wehling, 23, of Omaha, was dead at the scene. Her husband, Thomas Wehling, 26, was hospitalized in serious condition with lacerations and internal injuries.

Police were told Mrs. Wehling was driving at the time of the crash. They said after the car went through the guard rail it flipped over and landed on its top. Both persons were thrown from the car and fell 21 feet to Interstate 80 below.

The death was the first in Nebraska this new year and the second from a traffic accident this long New Year's holiday weekend.

Nebraska Cuts Road Death Toll For 2nd Year

For the second year in a row, Nebraska apparently has become one of the few states to reduce its highway death toll.

Year-end figures show 432 traffic fatalities in the state in 1973, compared with 485 the previous year.

Delayed reports plus deaths in 1974 from accidents last year could raise the 1973 total, but State Motor Vehicles Director John Sullivan said Tuesday it appears the state could record a reduction of about 10%.

In 1972, Nebraska was one of only three states in the nation to improve its safety record. "This year it looks like we might have the largest percentage reduction in the country," Sullivan said.

Louise Barstow Services Slated

Omaha (AP) — A memorial service will be Wednesday for Louise W. Barstow, 83, who died Saturday.

She helped found the Nebraska High School Press Association in 1929 and was a teacher at Omaha North High School until her retirement in 1953. Doane College named her a Doane Builder in 1964.

26 Below Record For Capital City

For the second consecutive day, record low temperature marks were set in Lincoln, plunging to 26 degrees below zero early Tuesday.

That frigid reading is only three degrees above Lincoln's all-time record low of 29 degrees below zero established Jan. 19, 1892, according to the National Weather Service.

The previous record low for a Jan. 1 was 18 below zero set in the Capital City in 1887. On New Year's Eve the midnight reading at the Lincoln Airport stood at 20 below, breaking the old record of 17 below set Dec. 31, 1969.

New Year's Day the mercury rose no higher than one below in Lincoln, between 2 and 3 p.m.

Nebraska was in the center of a middle-of-the-nation cold wave setting record lows stretching from 29 below at Minneapolis and Duluth, Minn., to 14 above at Midland, Tex. The lowest temperature in the U.S. Tuesday was 42 below at Roseau, Minn.

New record lows were also established at Grand Island Monday and Tuesday. The temperature at 11 p.m. New Year's Eve fell to minus 20, breaking the old mark of 17 below set there in 1967. Tuesday's low was 23 below, far under the old record of 14 below reached in 1912, 1924 and again in 1928 in the Third City on New Year's Day.

Other low readings in the Cornhusker state Tuesday included -25 at Chadron, -21 at Norfolk, -20 at Kearney, -19 at Valentine and -18 at Mullen.

Data at the Lincoln NWS office reveals Tuesday's -26 was also recorded here Feb. 13, 1905, Jan. 11, 1899, and Jan. 12, 1912. On Jan. 15, 1888, a reading of -27 is on the books for Lincoln.

Meanwhile, light snow was falling late Tuesday over western and south central Nebraska with Wednesday's forecast including a heavy snow watch for southeast Nebraska. A snowfall of four inches or more was said possible.

Soviet Diplomat Will Address Wheat Growers

Omaha (AP) — A Russian diplomat will address the 24th annual meeting of the National Association of Wheat Growers Jan. 13-17.

He is Yuri A. Malov, first secretary of the office of commercial counselor at the Russian embassy.

Another speaker will be David Hume, administrator of the Foreign Agricultural Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Addressing the annual banquet will be Carroll B. Brunthaven, assistant secretary of agriculture for commodity programs and international affairs.

Gov. J. James Exon will speak at a luncheon on Jan. 16.

Cunningham Still Back Of President

Omaha (AP) — Former Rep. Glenn Cunningham, R-Neb., says he supports President Nixon in the wake of the Watergate scandal.

Cunningham said he is critical of Republican officials who are trying to disassociate themselves from Nixon.

"They are politicians worried about their own scalps," he said.

He puts Rep. John Y. McCollister in that group.

McCollister defeated Cunningham in a 1970 Republican primary election which ended Cunningham's career as an elected public official.

McCollister issued a statement in October which criticized Nixon's handling of Watergate matters.

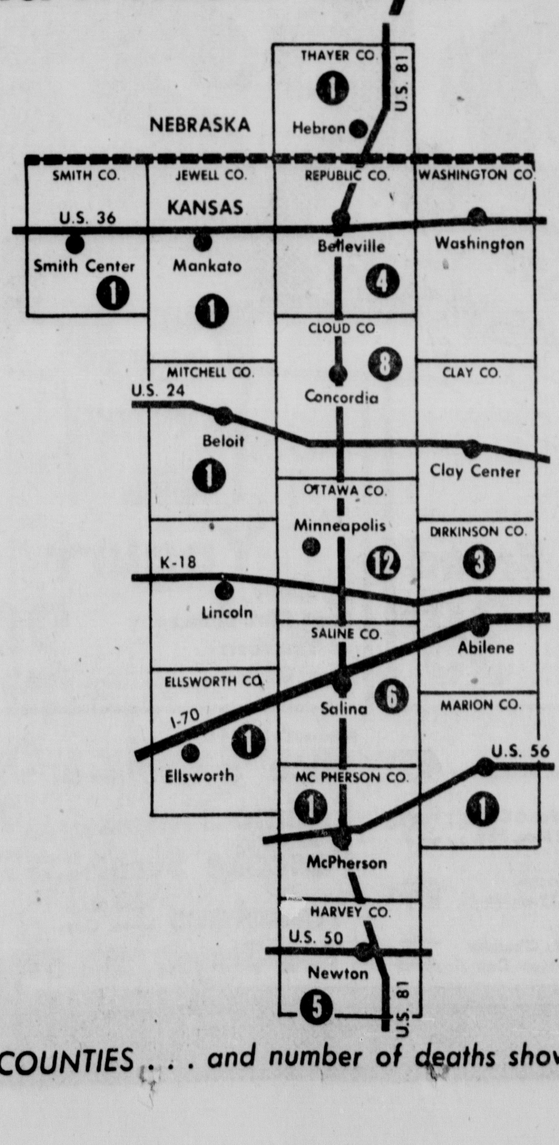

Cunningham said his support of the President has no political connotations. He said, "I have no intention of seeking any office again. I'm enjoying retirement."

New Year's Sun Rises Over Downtown Lincoln Skyline

Staff photographer Harald Dreimanis got up real early New Year's Day (or maybe he stayed up all night) to take this picture of 1974's first sunrise. The warming rays were certainly welcome, as the mercury plunged to a record low of 26 below during the night.

Lawmen Mystified By Series Of Cattle Mutilations

COUNTIES . . . and number of deaths shown.

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Concordia, Kan. — As usual, the cow was black and there was no death wound. As usual, an ear had been deftly slashed off. As usual, there was neither blood nor footprints.

Such has been the pattern in the weird mutilation deaths of more than 40 cattle in a dozen counties of north-central Kansas. Most of the critters have been found along a 25-mile strip on both sides of U.S. 81.

Even more bizarre, the sex organs had been removed from 28 of the animals, most of them females. Any flesh cut away for possible use as meat was relatively small, never more than a front or hind quarter.

Starting last June with the first discovery near the Nebraska border, the mystery deepened as one county after another experienced similar losses. A December meeting of area sheriffs at Concordia left the officers as puzzled as before.

"Some think that a cult involvement of some sort is responsible for the deaths, but that's only one of the wild theories," said Undersheriff C. P. McGuire of Concordia, near the center of the geographic pattern. "Right now, it's got everybody pretty confused."

There has also been talk that the cattle may have been slain by sex deviates, hippies or persons practicing witchcraft. The absence of blood even prompted rumors about vampires.

Eight such deaths have been substantiated in McGuire's Cloud County, while numerous other dead cattle proved to be the victims of predators or disease. The greatest number of cattle deaths in the state, an even dozen, occurred just south in Ottawa County.

Six have been reported in three counties along the Nebraska border, four of them in Republic County. One occurred in Nebraska, just south of Hebron, although it apparently didn't fit the general pattern.

Thayer County Sheriff Jim Johnson said the Nebraska cow, found dead several weeks ago, was intact, except for portions of two quarters which had been cut out. He doubts the death has any relationship to the Kansas incidents.

Of the four carcasses found in Republic County, Sheriff Robert Blecha of Belleville said an ear had been removed from three. Some meat was taken from all four, though "certainly not enough to justify butchering an animal."

The eerie situation received publicity in mid-December when Kansas Brand Commissioner Doyle Heft issued a statement attributing "99% of the deaths" to natural causes. That brought a quick reaction from investigating lawmen.

McGuire said authorities are particularly mystified by the absence of blood, even on hair surrounding a removed ear or other body parts. They are also puzzled by the lack of footprints.

"We don't know if they're being bled out first with a needle in the jugular vein or just what, but there's got to be some explanation," he reasoned.

Another bit of mystery, McGuire said, is that coyotes apparently refuse to eat from the carcasses. Officers returning for second inspections often find the cattle untouched, even after a couple weeks.

Most of the animals are without death marks, although one in Ottawa County had been shot through the eye. McGuire said it was concluded through several autopsies that the body parts were cut away, "not torn as if by an animal."

On some animals, only the external sex organs had been taken, while the complete reproductive areas had been removed from others. In some cases, an eyeball, a tongue or a snout had been cut away. An ear was the one common loss in nearly every instance.

Most of the cattle were found in secluded areas, although some were near farm lots. A $3,000 prize bull was reported among the victims. Otherwise, most of the animals were quite young.

"The bones were cleaned completely off and the ears taken clear to the base of the skull," McGuire said. "Another reason we can't accept the theory of blackleg or some other disease is that it's mostly small herds of under 20 which were hit, and nearly always they were Angus or black whitefaces."

A $500 reward is being offered by the Kansas Farm Bureau for information on the mutilations.

Most of the Kansas incidents were reported from October on, the last one Dec. 18 in Saline County. That was approximately the time of Heft's statement and the ensuing controversy.

"It appears the publicity has brought things to a screeching halt," said McGuire. "We just hope they stay that way."

8% Park Visitors From Nebraska

Omaha (AP) — The National Parks Service says Nebraskans accounted for nearly 8% of the 2.5 million visitors to Rocky Mountain National Park in 1973. The Park Service is taking a survey on a proposed master plan which would place 91% of the park in wilderness status.

A Word From Helen

Hinky Dinky's Home Economist

All of us take for granted the brown paper bags we carry our groceries home in.

Unfortunately, along with other paper shortages, these bags are now in short supply. You can help ease the situation by instantly re-cycling them. Sanitation codes will not permit the use of your bag for another customer's order, BUT you can help by bringing several for your own use on your next shopping trip.

And you can give yourself a well deserved pat on the back for doing your bit for ecology and conservation of paper during this time of shortage.

If you have suggestions for energy conservation or a question about food shopping, write to Helen Davis, at 4206 So. 108th, Omaha, Nebr. 68137.

Martin's Dismissal Is Formally Upheld

By United Press International

Dr. Jack Anderson, state institutions director, has formally upheld the dismissal of Dr. Louis Martin as clinical director of the Hastings Regional Center, it was learned Tuesday.

Martin had originally filed a grievance protesting his dismissal with Mrs. Hildreth Hultine, center director. After she upheld her dismissal decision, he forwarded the grievance to Anderson.

Anderson told UPI he wouldn't release the contents of his response to the grievance, but said the next step is up to Martin.

If Martin decides to pursue the matter, he could appeal to the State Personnel Board for a hearing.

"It's up to him to decide whether he wants to go to the Personnel Board," Anderson said.

Martin was relieved of his duties as clinical director Dec. 12 upon an order issued by Mrs. Hultine. The dismissal had Anderson's support at the time.

Anderson said shortly after the dismissal that he and Mrs. Hultine felt it was best because of conflicts between Martin and other staff members. Mrs. Hultine said the dismissal was made in the interests of the center and the state system.

Gary Berta Told To Stop Violating Act

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture said Tuesday Gary Berta, former operator of Tige Enterprises Inc. of Gering, has been ordered to stop violating financial and payment requirements of the Packers and Stockyards Administration.

The USDA said Berta formerly purchased livestock through the firm in Nebraska, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, Mississippi, Missouri and Tennessee. The firm is not now in operation.

The department said Berta consented to issuance of the order and waived oral hearing. He neither admitted nor denied the charges contained in an administrative complaint filed by the Packers and Stockyards Administration.

Livestock dealers and market agencies are required under the Packers and Stockyards Act to maintain a solvent financial position and to pay promptly for livestock, unless credit has been arranged in advance.

Leahy To Seek Aid In Funding Gasohol Plant

Omaha (AP) — Former mayor Eugene Leahy plans to meet with aides of the Nebraska congressional delegation Wednesday to seek assistance in getting federal money to help finance an experimental gasohol plant.

Leahy explained that he is primarily interested in putting the plant in the South Omaha Industrial Park, but would support a project located elsewhere in the "upper Midwest" if the South Omaha site was not acceptable to federal officials.

Gasohol is a blend of 90% gasoline and 10% grain alcohol. He said that in the light of dwindling fuel supplies and rising prices, use of alcohol to extend the gasoline supply is no longer considered economically feasible as it has been in the past.

Leahy spoke to a meeting of South Omaha businessmen and representatives of grain dealers, the Omaha Chamber of Commerce, State Gasohol Committee, Nebraska Department of Economic Development and the city's Economic Development Department.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Virgo likes neat, clean lines. Natives of this zodiacal sign prefer quick service to ostentatious frills. Virgo analyzes, arrives at decisions based on a combination of intellect and intuition. Virgo makes money with Libra, holds lively discussions with Scorpio, has a certain fear or awe where Leo is concerned and is helped up the ladder by Gemini. When a crisis arrives, Virgo is cool, earthy, practical, knowing where to go, what to do and when to do it. In ordinary circumstances, Virgo can be frivolous. But when the heat is on, Virgo is in the kitchen, cooking with all burners on full blast. These natives can stand the heat and have a right to remain in the kitchen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Cycle is such that surprise occur, publicity could attend efforts. You gain attention from sources previously indifferent. Marriage, partnership is highlighted. Sudden moves are featured. Contract needs more study, attention. Take initiative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Much that may have seemed definite or settled could become elusive. Wait and observe. Pisces, Virgo persons could play key roles. Get beneath surface indications. Strive to understand associate who apparently is brooding for no reason; keep recent health resolutions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may have to revise plans. Some hopes, ambitions move to different areas. Adjustment is necessary. Member of opposite sex may display temperament. Get facts in order. Money management is more important than usual. Capricorn, Cancer persons could be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reach understanding with Gemini. What appeared practical may be the opposite. Know it and ride with tide. Change with times. Step forward, not backward. Finish what you start — get rid of burden not really your own.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are presented with what might be termed a golden opportunity. Take chance on your own abilities. Bring forth creative resources. Youth is emphasized. Push to new horizons. Stop trying to live in past. Grasp chance for greater success.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Consolidate. Bring together various assets. Know where you stand. Money matters dominate. Investments, payments and collections are likely to be featured. Aquarian could figure prominently. Pay attention to hunch.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Forces tend to be scattered. Key is to be selective. You have right to expect quality. Social contacts now prove meaningful. You receive privileged information. Sagittarius, Gemini persons are in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may feel restricted, but this is temporary. Know it, observe, plan, lay groundwork for future assault. Do some tearing down for purpose of rebuilding. What had been a secret is revealed. One behind the scenes is preparing a surprise — for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Excitement of discovery is featured. Blandness is transformed into color. Change, travel and a variety of experiences are indicated. Be analytical. You will be capable of piecing together bits of information.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home, property, family affairs tend to dominate. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Accent is on security and how to obtain it. Take one step at a time. Shortcut procedures are not practical at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are able to imprint style. Your way becomes acceptable, desirable to more persons. You are able to pull strings behind the scenes. What appears an illusion may have more substance than is apparent on surface.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): There could be some money manipulation which affects you. Protect yourself in clinches. Check tax procedures, policies, investments. You may be giving too much for too little. You can deal from position of greater strength.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you instinctively know what is best but often permit obligations to veer you off constructive path. You sacrifice for persons who may not always be worthy. March and December stand out as your most significant months of 1974. Cancer persons are drawn to you and you make money with Aquarius.

New Officers Young, College-Educated:

Policewomen's Work Service, Not Sleuthing

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The number of policewomen on the Lincoln police force has more than doubled in recent months.

Four new policewomen, all young, all with college degrees, will be operating under the tutelage of Policewoman Catherine Riggles, a veteran of 11 years on the force.

The number of policewomen on the force usually stood at two for years, with a third woman working occasionally.

What kind of women is needed for the job of policewoman?

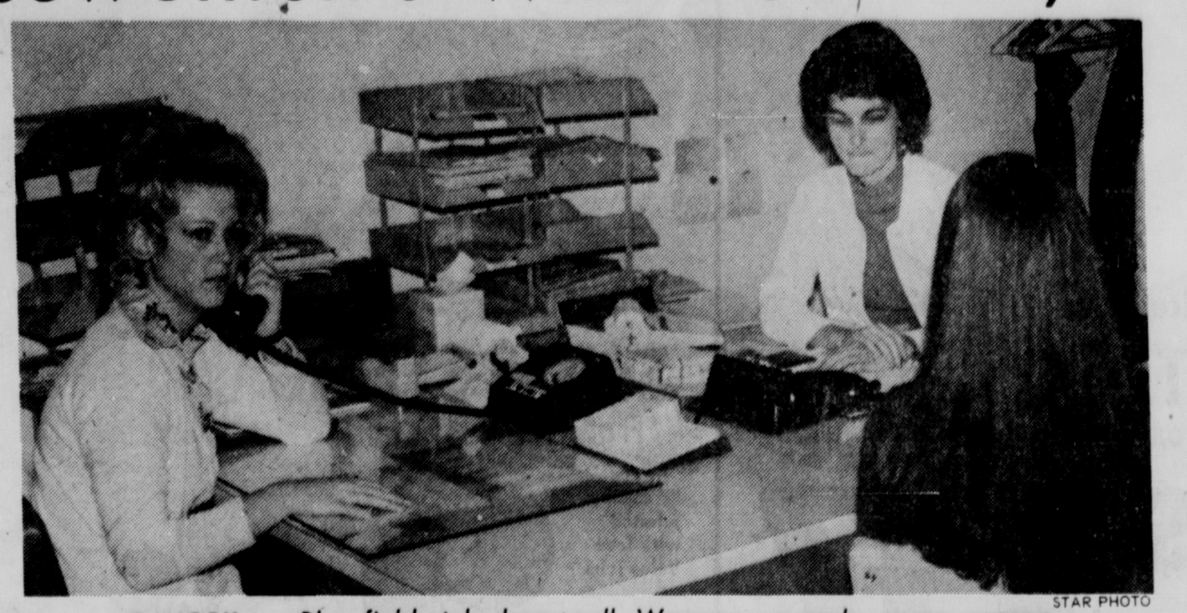

A policewoman needs to be a person who is "interested in people and likes all kinds of people" Riggles said.

'Stable Person'

It takes a "stable person" who has the "inner strength and resources" to stay above the "sordid side of life" she sees as a policewoman, Riggles said.

Riggles feels the job has the effect of increasing a person's "tolerance, understanding and acceptance of people."

She said the policewomen handle cases involving "women, girls, runaways, lost children, found children, molests, rapes, shoplifting and checking on the welfare of elderly people."

STAR PHOTO

AT WORK . . . Blue fields telephone call, Wemmer counsels young woman.

About 80% of a policewoman's work in Lincoln involves service, not sleuthing, Riggles said.

The new policewomen are Sheri Farrar, 23, Joy Wemmer, 28, Margery Blue, 23, and Linda Steinman, 30.

Sheri Farrar grew up in Maywood, a small town in the southwestern part of the state "where no one locks their doors, people leave their keys in their cars" and where "you expect people to tell you the truth when you ask them a question."

Didn't Believe It

When she started work, Farrar said, "They'd give me reports and I'd say 'You're kidding. I don't believe it.' "

"I don't say that any more," she said.

The background of Linda Steinman, 30, is markedly different from Farrar's. She has worked in a halfway house in a Chicago ghetto serving people who had just been released from the state mental institution.

"I've seen incredible things in Chicago," she said, adding that Lincoln appears almost "tame" after her experiences there.

Steinman, who joined the department Oct. 22, said the force appears to be a "well-organized, well-intentioned group of men and women."

"In Chicago you have the feeling all cops are corrupt," she said.

She took the job, she said, because she likes "working with people. I'm not out to save the world, but I can try to help somebody in a bad situation," she said.

Likes Variety

Joy Wemmer, 28, has been on the force for about five months.

"I like the variety," she said of her job. "One minute it might be an old person who needs help and the next time it might be a shoplifter."

"I feel like we usually get some kind of results benefiting society or the people we're working with," she said.

Margery Blue, who joined the department Aug. 1, said she took the job because she "liked the challenge". The job turned out to be a "better challenge than I thought," she said.

"Any minute the phone might ring and you'll be working on a rape or attempted suicide," she said.

Blue, who majored in Spanish at Kearney State College, has been called on several times to work on cases involving Spanish-speaking people.

"They really appreciate it when you can come out to their home and they can speak their language," Blue said. "When someone robs their house and they call the police but can't speak a word of English it's very frustrating."

Schools Here Work To Identify, Help Gifted Children

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

"Gifted children are children first and gifted second."

At least that's the way John Dudley looks at these bright youngsters.

As director of the program for gifted children in the Lincoln Public Schools, Dudley is working to identify the academically talented student.

He believes about a tenth of Lincoln's 32,000 students would qualify as gifted under the "liberal criteria" which he helped formulate during his three years as director of the state program for the gifted.

About 2,000 have been identified so far, but Dudley thinks he will find more than 1,000 others who have been missed for one reason or another.

Because school is verbally oriented, Dudley feels only a small part of the gifted children are even found out. Some kids are highly gifted, but not at school, he noted.

Teacher observation and parent recommendation are ways of weeding out the exceptional youngster. Surprisingly, Dudley pointed out, some parents are reluctant to say they think their child is especially bright.

Though the program aims at identifying talented youngsters, Dudley is the first to admit that in many cases the schools "have not done a thing for them" once they are found.

'Some kids are highly gifted, but not at school.'

While the principal and staff teachers can decide what, if anything, to do for the child, Dudley's input is in "trying to sell people on different kinds of things to do."

In this scheme of things Dudley acts as a resource person and an advocate for gifted children. He feeds material to teachers and coordinates efforts within the community.

The teacher is the key person, Dudley believes. Openness, flexibility, and knowing "to holler when she needs help" are necessary tools for teachers of the gifted.

Once a child has grasped a concept he should be able to move on. But gifted children's interests are so broad and they move into areas so rapidly that it's hard to keep up with them, explained Dudley. "A teacher can only do so much," he noted.

These youngsters tend to zero in on a subject and study it in depth so that sometimes they know more than their teachers. In these cases, resource people with expertise in certain fields are called in to help, related Dudley.

"It's very important that a school not stand in the way," contends Dudley. But acceleration should be on an individual basis as some kids need the experience with their peers.

The idea that gifted kids can get it on their own is a "myth" remarked Dudley. "We must provide just as many experiences and help for them."

Additional funds, specifically for identified gifted students (using a 120 IQ cut-off point) will be available to individual schools during the 1974-75 school year for the purchase of extra curriculum materials, he noted.

Dudley justifies a program for gifted kids as a learning mechanism for teaching other kids. Through such programs one can learn the potential of an individual. "These kids are innovative and they discover things one can use in teaching other students," explained Dudley.

But he stressed the importance of not losing sight of the fact that these gifted youngsters are little kids who "should still have time to be children."

"Gifted kids are not that different," he contends. "If you lined up a bunch of kids, you couldn't pick the gifted one out."

In general these kids are gifted emotionally and socially also, he said.

But Dudley believes that it is important for them to learn "tolerance for ambiguity" and to know how "to make order out of chaos."

"If we turn out kids who know their strengths and weaknessess, know how to deal with themselves and where they fit in the world, we've done a good service."

Lawsuit May Have Impact On Paying Interest On Escrow Accounts

©The New York Times

By ROBERT J. COLE

New York — John Warren Carpenter owns property in Boston and pays off the mortgage to the Suffolk Franklin Savings Bank there.

In accordance with longstanding practice around the country, ever month he also sends along one-twelfth of his annual property tax, which the bank then pays in his name at the proper time.

Not too long ago, however, Carpenter and other mortgage clients of the bank filed suit against the institution to recover profits that they maintain the bank made by investing the tax money.

The suit, filed in State Court in Massachusetts on behalf of Carpenter and all others in the same situation, was decided in favor of the bank. But on appeal to the Supreme Judicial Court, the state's highest tribunal, the court ruled that Carpenter and the others were entitled to an accounting of the profits, if any, on the tax payments. The decision also appears to say that they are entitled to these profits too.

Carpenter, however, must prove that the bank held the money in some trust capacity.

The suit, which has subsequently been broadened to include pratically every major mortgage lender in Massachusetts, now before the Suffolk Superior Court to determine whether it can be considered a class action. The issue itself — whether the banks make a profit on investing such tax payments — will be decided later.

Although this lawsuit is confined to Massachusetts, its outcome may well have significant impact on a closely related consumer demand: the payment of interest on tax money and other funds held by banks in trust, often called escrow accounts.

So far, Connecticut is the only state where escrow accounts draw interest (the minimum annual rate is 2%). In 1974, Massachusetts lenders who profit by investing such funds also must pay interest. Similar legislation is expected to be introduced in at least seven states — Oregon, Minnesota, North Carolina, Michigan, California, Virginia and New York.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-Calif., with the support of 23 other congressmen, has proposed one of 10 escrow bills introduced in the house during this session.

As presently drawn, the Brown bill would require mortgage lenders to pay at least the same interest rate as that prevailing on loans by federal reserve banks to member banks — the discount rate less a ¾% service charge.

With the discount rate at record 7.5%, lenders currently would have to pay 6¾% interest on escrow accounts if such a measure was enacted.

Although some banks voluntarily pay interest on escrow funds they hold, typically offsetting it by service charges to the borrower, mortgage lenders in general have vigorously opposed all efforts to legislate such payments into law.

The United States Savings and Loan League, speaking for thrift institutions, maintained recently that the average escrow account was unprofitable. The League estimated that it cost about $6 last year to administer a typical $400 escrow account. The money it earned on such an account was less than the break-even point, it said.

But with the price of homes soaring rapidly almost everywhere, property taxes of $1,500 a year — and far more — are no longer a rarity. And, too, many lenders also collect monthly payments for fire insurance, which they pay for the customer when the time comes.

Even at, say, 6% annual interest, a $1,500 escrow account would earn about $45 a year. The amount isn't any larger because the lender doesn't have the full amount for the full year.

The national clamor for interest payments clearly is of major concern to mortgage lenders. For one thing, millions of dollars of non-interest-bearing funds are involved. For another, it would open the door to still further changes, such as the payment of interest in Christmas clubs on a much wider scale.

Japan, Taiwan Economic Ties Are Close

TOKYO (AP) — Officially on mutually hostile terms, Japan and Taiwan have developed a relationship that might even guide the Nationalist Chinese regime toward some relief from a position of growing diplomatic isolation.

On the record, Japan ignores Chiang Kai-shek's island government and has done so ever since breaking relations with it to establish ties with Mao Tse-tung's mainland Communists.

But, behind scenes, the two are Asia's Odd Couple. Economically powerful Japan and flourishing Taiwan are the two largest traders in Asia. They have found ways to get around the political-diplomatic barriers so that they can maintain close and active ties with each other. The mechanics of it are complicated, but the results are clear.

Trade between the two has risen 42 percent to $2.02 billion in the year since Tokyo broke relations with Taipei.

Japan's two-way trade with Mao's People's Republic is expected to top the $2 billion mark this year, an all-time high, according to the Japan External Trade Organization.

The figures on trade with the mainland points up the importance of Taiwan's role in Japan's commerce.

Despite heavy political pressure to do so, Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka has not signed an aviation agreement with Peking because the Nationalists have threatened to interfere with Japan Airlines' flights to Southeast Asia and Europe via Taiwan if he does so. The Tokyo-Taipei link is one of the line's most profitable international routes.

In addition, Japan's oil tanker routes from the Persian Gulf run past Taiwan.

There is good reason, too, for Taiwan to cement economic relations with Japan, which is her second largest trading partner behind the United States. A drop in trade could hurt Taiwan's economic boom and bring political problems at home for the Nationalist government.

So, faced with strong economic reasons for getting along, both Tokyo and Taipei have turned to ostensibly private organizations to handle their affairs.

Tokyo's organization is called the Japan-Taiwan Liaison Office, while Taiwan's is called the East Asian Relations Association.

While these are private organizations officially, they function just like embassies and many of their staff members are foreign service officers.

Japan's liaison office in Taipei keeps a low profile, handling mostly visas and routine trade matters.

Serious business between the two governments is discussed in Tokyo under the guidance of Mah Soo-lay, an urbane man who formerly was a top official of the Nationalists' Kuomintang political party. Though without diplomatic title, he is effectively Taiwan's ambassador in Tokyo.

Officially there is no contact between Mah's association and the Japanese Foreign Ministry, with all business being carried out in private contacts with government officials.

But sources said association officials recently have been meeting privately with Foreign Ministry officials.

The past year has also seen expanded public activities by the Nationalist representatives in Japan, ranging from parades to publications.

"A year ago newspapers even refused to accept our advertising. But now we get regular news coverage in many smaller publications," said a high official of the association, who asked not to be named.

A lavish reception in early December welcoming association President Chang Yen-tien on his first visit to Tokyo drew several thousand guests, including a Japanese Cabinet minister, a former prime minister, the chief of Japan's powerful federation of economic organizations and 80 legislators.

"Frankly, this is turning out better than we expected," said the Nationalist official. "We've been surprised and happy at the amount of support we've been getting."

TVA Sees Obstacles Ahead

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority reports record power sales of 103.5 billion kilowatt-hours in fiscal 1973 but says obstacles confront it in meeting future energy demands.

The agency, in its annual report to the President and Congress, said its power operations "reflected the intensifying pressures felt by utility systems nationally in providing increasing supplies of electrical energy."

The agency also said that a steady rise in construction and operating costs had forced it to raise its power rates.

The new rates, which went into effect Tuesday, will range from a 14 per cent boost to residential consumers to 23 per cent for large industrial users.

The authority added more than 2 million kilowatts of electricity to its power system during the year, boosting the generating capacity to 21.9 million kilowatts. This makes TVA the largest single power producer in the country.

Increased use of power by residential, industrial and other customers ate up TVA's additional electricity. And the authority said the demand is expected to grow at an annual compound rate of 7 per cent during the next decade.

To meet this anticipated demand, TVA is building or planning nuclear power plants that will add more than 17 million kilowatts of generating capacity by 1982.

N. Ireland Still Clutching At Peace

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Northern Ireland heads into 1974 clutching at prospects for peace after years of guerrilla war and communal feuding.

Those prospects are slender but nontheless real. Equally real is the prospect of more battles and bombings to increase the total of more than 900 dead since August 1969.

On New Year's Day the province comes under a new form of government forged from a fragile understanding between Protestant and Roman Catholic politicians. It is intended to end the feudings which have split the two communities for centuries.

Brian Faulkner, leader of the Protestant-based Unionist Party, becomes chief executive for this power-sharing administration.

His deputy is Gerry Fitt, the ex-seaman who leads the Catholicbased Social Democratic and Labor Party. Fitt has brought into the administration men like John Hume and Austin Currie who led the Catholic civil rights campaign of 1968.

Thus Faulkner and his supporters have foregone the Protestant ascendancy which ruled the province from the time of Ireland's partition after World War I.

Fitt and his men for their part have shelved their aspirations for a united Irish republic at least until 1983, when a referendum is due.

Fitt's men have been branded as traitors by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is battling to break Northern Ireland's links with Britain. The IRA is sworn to keep up its fight.

Faulkner is equally denounced by hardline Protestants who see him as railroading them into a deal with the Catholic-dominated republic to the south. He faces a difficult confidence vote Jan. 4 at a meeting of his party's governing body, but says he will continue in the executive even if the vote goes against him.

The new setup restores representative government to the province after 21 months of direct rule from Britain. The British Parliament, in which Northern Ireland has representatives, dissolved the Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland parliament in 1972 to make way for the power-sharing system.

The next step, once the Northern executive is working, will be further talks with the Irish republic's government in Dublin on forming a council of Ireland.

Controlled Brands Savings...

Many of us made a New Year's Resolution to shop harder and more carefully in order to control spending for food. I would like to suggest one easy way to save extra dollars, yet maintain good nutrition in family meals.

Buy the brand which you know represents quality and responsibility. Buy controlled or private brand products. Our brands, such as First Pick, Good Value, Rainbow, and TV, often can save you five, ten or even twenty per cent over nationally advertised brands.

Only the choicest products are selected for the First Pick brand. Good Value means that you get a "good value" every time you buy a Good Value product. Rainbow canned foods are our lowest priced brand, yet each can is packed with good-tasting, nutritious food. TV is the brand on many of our fine dairy and frozen foods. You get consistent quality at low prices with these products.

Read the labels to know what you are buying. Buy according to grade, content and intended use. Take advantage of nutritional labeling. It will help you plan nutritious, well-balanced meals.

We will guarantee that our controlled brands will meet your approval. Simply return the item to this store, tell us why it was not satisfactory, and we will replace it with an item of equal value.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 1-2

Convenience And Adaptability Mark Winning Coiffures

Convenience and adaptability to their roles or their lifestyles are the hairstyle requirements of the Ten Best Coiffured Women for 1973, selected for the 17th year by the Helene Curtis Guild of Professional Beauticians.

Celebrities named to this year's bestcoiffed list are television actresses Mary Tyler Moore, Valerie Harper, Karen Valentine, Denise Nicholas and Jean Stapleton; newswoman Barbara Walters; actress Eva Gabor; socialite Betsy Bloomingdale; fashion designer Cardinali and television show hostess Janel Langhart.

Hairstyles selected by these women, chosen by the Guild for their well-coiffed heads and well-groomed looks, reflect tastes as individual as today's fashions with no singluar trend. Whether short or long, the hair is always softly feminine and shaped for versatility.

Softness also shapes the hairstyle scene for Spring '74, predict the hairdressers who regularly coif those Ten Best Coiffured Women of 1973.

In interviewing the ten winning hairstylists, Helene Curtis found the majority concurred that short hair was the coming look. However, it will wear a refined finish rather than a carefree, casual one to match the romantic mood in spring clothing fashions.

One stylist who stresses softness in his coiffure designs is Mac Eden of Los Angeles, Calif., creator of the new, more beautiful image for TV's "Rhoda," Valerie Harper. He gave her a sleeker, more sophisticated pageboy to suit her thinner figure. A strong individualist when it comes to hair design, he feels that hair is "everything" to a woman's appearance and wants it to be natural and comfortable for the particular wearer.

Another advocate of natural tresses is Beverly Hills, Calif. stylist Joel Israel, who works closely with Mary Tyler Moore in creating her becoming chin-length classic style.

He explained that in the past year he's "cut her hair shorter and lightened it" for an updated look. Although she wears it simply in her weekly TV role, she can pull it back easily when off-camera or dress it up for evening wear.

Ann Waddlinton of Van Nuys, Calif., coiffure designer for "Room 222's" Denise Nicholas, also prefers the flexibility of medium length hair. She's grown her client's hair from short to almost shoulder length. As both of them work together in creating new looks, Ms. Nicholas' hair can be curled or curved to suit her role or her costume.

The wispy, gamine coif worn by Karen Valentine is the work of Jon Peters of Beverly Hills, Calif., salon owner. He prefers an easy, natural feeling in hair and carves out Karen's carefully casual look with frequent scissors-shapings. He forecasts the "butterfly" look as spring's headline hair-do with an emphasis on soft, curvy lines.

The ten best-coiffured women of 1973, as selected by the Helene Curtis Guild of Professional Beauticians (clockwise from upper left) — Karen Valentine, Mary Tyler Moore, Betsy Bloomingdale, Eva Gabor, Janet Langhart, Cardinali, Barbara Walters, Denise Nicholas, Valerie Harper and Jean Stapleton.

"Shorter hair that soft and feminine" is what Peggy Shannon of Van Nuys, Calif., coiffure artist to actress Eva Gabor, predicts for the new season. It's also the way she styles her winning client's elegant blonde tresses. She describes the classic, regal coif as "really a period look for 1864," with tendril accents to enhance Miss Gabor's beautiful features.

The early bird among the Ten Best hairdressers is no doubt Joseph Coscia of New York, who coifs Barbara Walters each morning prior to the "Today" show. After a quick-setting on electric rollers, he brushes out her brunette tresses and fluffs the ends from underneath for a "loose, casual feeling that doesn't look too set."

"My client's hair is excellent for curling and I recently cut it so it will hold a set even longer. She is a very professional lady and so easy to work with," comments Mr. Coscia, who obviously enjoys his job despite the eye-opening hours.

Also on the short and soft wave-length is Beverly Hills, Calif., stylist Carrie White, who creates the layered, curly cap worn by socialite Betsy Bloomingdale. Describing the look as "dramatic with sexy seasoning," she admits her client's great fashion style influences the coif she designs, which is "finger styled" with upswept lines.

Ms. White sees a "more polished, finished look not so country casual" on the hairstyle horizon, but will continue to handle her individual clients according "to the curl and the girl."

Hugh York, also of Beverly Hills, Calif., reports that fashion designer Cardinali's hair is "fabulous to work with and free of all problems." For her, he just made the big transition from long, smooth hair to a super-short, small head look. He believes fashion begins at the top, with the hair, and often suits his client's coiffures to her latest clothing collections.

"She's so vivacious that it inspires me to try new looks," comments Boston stylist Stephen Shepard about regional TV show hostess, Janet Langhart. They both agree that versatility is the key to wearable hair-dos, so they keep her hair shoulder-length. He gives her a natural, uncontrived coif by setting it on rollers for body and gently finishing the ends in curls. He also forecasts the shorter, small head for spring and thinks the new "Great Gatsby" movie will have a big style influence.

"Creating the look that's most flattering to her features" is the secret of Hollywood, Calif., stylist Edie Panda's winning coiffure for Jean Stapleton. Her cap of airy, lively curls gets its bounce from weekly settings, regular conditioning and perms for body. Currently, she's letting the back grow for a bit more length and predicts this will be the hairstyle trend come spring with softness and curl, rather than a boyish look.

Survey Finds Changed Attitudes Among Blue Collar Wives

By ROB CUSCADEN
(c) 1973, Chicago Sun-Times

Blue collar wives, typically the daughters of working class families, and typically married to craftsmen, factory workers and service workers, long have been taken for granted by the world of marketing.

And why not?

For decades, the working class woman has been part of one of the most stable, unchanging groups in society.

Her basic characteristics were well-known. She lived a protective and closed life. She was satisfied with her lot, and dependent and passive in her relationship with her husband. Her concerns were limited to caring for children, husband and home. She was at a loss to think of herself in any capacity other than that of a mother. And her social contacts were limited almost exclusively to her relatives.

But, wow, has all that changed!

The working class woman today is "an awakened giant . . . and our society will never be the same again," according to a study just released by Social Research.

The market research organization prepared the study for the MacFadden-Bartell Corp., which publishes a group of women's magazines led by True Story and Photoplay. Burleigh B. Gardner, chairman of Social Research, outlined the results of the study at a press conference.

Some 40 million strong and representing almost 60% of the adult female population, blue collar wives are emerging as a new social, political and economic force to be reckoned with, Gardner said.

It is fascinating that both the greatest success and the strongest critic of the Women's Lib Movement, the working class woman, has been profoundly influenced by that movement and consumerism.

Most pervasive and dramatic of the changes in the attitudes of the awakened blue collar wife are her views of her role as wife, mother and homemaker, according to the study. For years, the triangle of husband, children and home kept her captive. Today, these women are rejecting such limitations. They feel women should have a choice of careers, homemaking, or of both.

Other dramatic manifestations of her changed attitudes documented in the study are these:

— Almost a third of the women say they would not choose homemaking as a career if they could go back to being 15 years old.

— A new desire for independence. Eight years ago, 48% thought a personal second car was a luxury; today, the same number see it as a necessity.

— A desire for fewer children. As recently as 1965, the majority saw the ideal family as having four children. Today, 71% in their early 20s say they plan to have two or fewer children.

— A new interest in herself as a person, rather than as an instrument for the care of family and home. This is reflected in a switch of priorities from wanting products that helped her mother and older sister serve their families to those that will free her from housework, or which contribute to her own comfort and gratification (i.e., an air conditioner instead of a sewing machine).

— A new interest in community and jobs. She is expressing a marked interest in the larger world, no longer confining herself to solely domestic matters.

"The changes this study documents are the most significant we have witnessed in more than a quarter century of probing the attitudes of blue collar wives," noted Gardner. "And the implications of the findings are far-reaching for business, labor, government and education."

Each Day Is A Miracle

Today's first Write-On columnist is Opal Y. Palmer, mother of three and grandmother of seven.

She is a home-maker and free-lance writer.

As a volunteer with the Retired Senior Volunteer Project, she reads tapes for blind students, and also retains an interest in music and drama.

I drove through the streets of Lincoln in April.

I drove through the streets of Lincoln in November.

Each episode gave me a feeling of awe; of mystery. Why should I, a mere human being, be entitled to witness this miracle of beauty around me with some measure of understanding?

In the springtime, flowering trees dressed in brilliant reds, golds, pinks and whites, foretold homes for birds and squirrels. They foretold food for birds, animals and human beings.

In November, Jack Frost had displayed his skill at painting leaves with brushes dripping with red, brown, and golden colors.

Again, I as a human being, am aware of the order in nature which sends squirrels scurrying to hoard acorns. And birds fly south for grubs and insects which they must have to survive, but cannot store. People have stored apples, peaches, cherries and pears in jars, freezers and jelly glasses.

I remember other springs; other falls, and life in between.

I remember contacts with friends; with relatives.

There were times of helpfulness, of love and understanding; lean times and prosperous times; sad times and happy times. These are still in my memory.

Thus, each day, each hour, each contact with another human being, with nature, is a miracle.

But the greatest of all miracles is this: that one insignificant human being can learn that he is a part of such order. That he can store in his memory all the miracles in all the seasons through which he has lived.

The second Write-On contribution was submitted by Mrs. Liz Cooper, a registered nurse who now is a homemaker.

She has one child, a two-year-old daughter.

She is active in La Leche League and visits elderly persons at Tabitha Home each week.

It has been said that "Good always brings along some evil."

While this statement may not always hold true, it does seem to be the case with the women's liberation movement. The feminist movement is succeeding in helping women to gain equality and freedom for themselves. But with this great accomplishment, there is one area regarding women which is suffering untold setbacks and deterioration.

This area is motherhood.

The state of motherhood in our society is going down, down, down.

It now is the prevailing view among large portions of our society that in order for a woman to be well-rounded, intelligent and liberated she must free herself from the full-time responsibilities of motherhood and seek a career outside the home.

Because of this, many women are suppressing their maternal instincts in order to become, what they are being told is, "liberated."

The woman who chooses to be a full-time mother must continually defend her choice against those who would demean it as a menial, non-important task to be done only by someone with low intelligence and no education.

Women need to be liberated from these ideas.

Our society needs to be brought back to the realization that the shaping of a small, helpless, human being into a whole, well-rounded, psychologically healthy person, is not a small, unimportant job, but a gigantic, rewarding one. It is a job which demands intelligence, discernment, and sensitivity.

Women need to look critically at the idea that the life of a full-time mother is dull, boring and unsatisfying.

On the contrary, when taken seriously and consciously, motherhood can and should be a challenging and stimulating career. It is by no means an easy job, if one is to be a responsible, loving, responsive mother. But this is precisely why mothering is such a challenge.

Women also must realize that being a full-time mother does not confine one to her home all day, cleaning house and deciding on how to discipline the children.

This is not how it need be, and certainly not how it should be.

Indeed, a full-time mother needs to become involved in activities outside of the home. This is not acknowledging that a mother's home life is dull, but rather that every person, in order to have a full, enriched life, needs varied interests and involvements.

The opportunities for invigorating, enriching experiences for those who do not work outside their homes is not limited, but vast — ranging anywhere from university courses, to church work, to political involvement, to volunteer work with the aged or handicapped.

The institution of motherhood in our society needs to be uplifted rather than downgraded.

Women have the right to be respected for wanting to realize the full satisfactions and joys of motherhood. This respect needs to come not only because motherhood deserves it, but because children have the right to have mothers who are proud to be in the "profession of motherhood." Because it is only when one is proud of his or her work that they can do justice to it.

Those who would degrade motherhood ought to take a look at what mothering is really all about.

And those who choose motherhood as their sole profession, ought to stand up and demand the respect they deserve.

Pennsylvania Dutch Dishes Tasty, Easy To Prepare

The vegetable cuisine of the Pennsylvania Dutch is based on the era of out-of-season fresh vegetables that is certainly in keeping with the age of the tin can.

For example, Pennsylvania Dutch Green Beans and German Potato Salad recipes offer sweet-sour dishes which are easy to prepare with canned vegetables.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH GREEN BEANS

3 slices bacon, diced
1 small onion, sliced
2 t cornstarch
¼ t salt
¼ t dry mustard
1 can (16 oz.) cut green beans
1 T brown sugar
1 T vinegar
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped

Cook bacon until crisp; remove from skillet. Add onion to 1 tablespoon bacon drippings; cook until tender. Blend in cornstarch, salt and mustard. Drain beans, reserving ½ c. liquid. Stir in reserved liquid. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened and translucent. Blend in sugar and vinegar. Add beans. Heat. Top with bacon and egg. Makes four servings.

GERMAN POTATO SALAD

2 cans (16 oz. each) whole new potatoes
6 slices bacon, diced
½ c. sliced green onion
3 T sugar
1 T flour
1½ t salt
¼ t dry mustard
1/3 c. vinegar
1 hard-cooked egg, sliced

Drain potatoes, reserving ¾ cup liquid. Slice potatoes. Cook bacon until crisp; remove from skillet. Add onion to ¼ c. bacon drippings in skillet; cook until tender. Blend in sugar, flour, salt and mustard. Stir in reserved liquid and vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add potatoes and bacon. Heat. Garnish with egg. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH . . . green beans compliment hearty appetites.

Grocery Buying Tips Available in Booklet

Although there is no probable immediate relief from high food prices, the home service staff of the Whirlpool Corporation has developed a composite booklet on how to cope with the rising food costs.

After interviewing selected homemakers, researchers and people in the food industry for tips on coping with rising food costs, the Corporation personnel incorporated their ideas into a 48-page booklet called "Easing the Crisis in Food Prices.

Persons interested in receiving the booklet should send 50 cents in coin to Whirlpool Corporation, Home Service Department N., Administrative Center, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Letter Of Complaint Will Eliminate Ghost

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Would you like to hear a true, modern ghost story? One evening while sitting alone, I heard a man's voice distinctly. I could find no one inside the house or out. A while later I heard it again. It seemed to come right out of the air. I checked the TV sets. None was on. I was completely bewildered and somewhat frightened.

A few nights later, a neighbor was visiting me and we both heard this man's voice. We searched the house together and discovered the voice coming from a transistor radio that was turned off!

My "ghost" was a ham radio operator in my neighborhood, broadcasting with such a powerful signal that he kept coming out of everything but the fillings in my teeth. I suppose that's next.

My "Ghost" interferes with the reception on my TV, radio, stereo — everything. Some neighbors have told me they have the same trouble. I've written to the FCC in Washington and they have done nothing about it. Can you help me?

HAUNTED IN HOLLYWOOD

DEAR HAUNTED: The next time you hear your "ghost," write down his call letters, and send it in a registered letter of complaint to your regional FCC office. (Federal Building, Los Angeles.) Ask your neighbors who have been similarly annoyed to sign it, and send a registered copy to your ham. He is using improperly shielded equipment, which is against the law, and can be remedied.

The FCC is reluctant to crack down too hard on offending ham operators because in times of emergencies and disasters, these hams provide a wonderful public service (gratis) when all other communications fail.

DEAR ABBY: What should one do about a sister who, upon seeing something of yours she likes, says: "Oh, will you please leave that to me when you die?"

She is my younger sister, and she does that with all of the older brothers and sisters, too.

IRKED IN PORTLAND

DEAR IRKED: Tell her you will consider it — if she doesn't die first.

DEAR ABBY: I had my wedding date all set and was given several lovely showers, then I had to cancel my wedding due to a misunderstanding. (My fiance's wife changed her mind and refused to give him a divorce.) I returned over 100 shower gifts. Suddenly, the whole picture changed when the wife met another man, so now the wedding is rescheduled. I would like to write a little note on the wedding invitations to those who gave me a shower gift asking them to kindly return my shower gift.

When I mentioned this idea to a few of my friends they said I shouldn't do it. Why not? I'm marrying the same man, only the timing is different.

RESCHEDULED

DEAR RESCHEDULED: Once a gift is returned it no longer belongs to you. If your friends want to shower you again, they will have to reschedule the showers.

DEAR READERS: I would like to share something with you that strikes me as 9 simple common sense rules. Let's call them, New Year's Resolutions:

"Just for today I will try to live thru this day only, and not tackle my whole life problem at once. I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

"Just for today I will be happy. This assumes to be true what Abraham Lincoln said, that 'Most folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be.'

"Just for today I will adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own desires. I will take my "luck" as it comes, and fit myself to it.

"Just for today I will try to strengthen my mind. I will study. I will learn something useful. I will not be a mental loafer. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

"Just for today I will exercise my soul in three ways: I will do somebody a good turn, and not get found out; if anybody knows of it, it will not count. I will do at least two things I don't want to do — just for exercise. I will not show anyone that my feelings are hurt; they may be hurt, but today I will not show it.

"Just for today I will be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk low, act courteously, criticize not one bit, not find fault with anything and not try to improve or regulate anybody except myself.

"Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it. I will save myself from two pests; hurry and indecision.

"Just for today I will have a quiet half hour all by myself, and relax. During this half hour, some time, I will try to get a better perspective of my life.

"Just for today I will be unafraid. Especially I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful, and to believe that as I give to the world, so the world will give to me."

And that is the credo for Overeaters Anonymous. It makes sense, doesn't it? And so does their program. It's free. For information about this wonderful organization, write to Box 2613, Hollywood, Cal. 90028.

P.S. Have a happy, healthy New Year. And pray for peace!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had an argument about something and hope you can settle it. Does Lawrence Welk's champagne lady have false teeth? Or are they her own?

CURIOUS IN LANCASTER

DEAR CURIOUS: They're hers. (I got it straight from the horse's mouth.)

Problems(You'll feel better if you get if off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The bidding:

Opening lead - ace of diamonds.

It is next to impossible to find an explanation for the strange goings-on that not infrequently occur in world championship events.

For example, feast your eyes on this hand from the world pair championship in 1970. When Zanasi and Saulino of Italy — who led the field most of the way and finally finished third — were North-South, the bidding went as shown.

West made a takeout double of one spade and East chose to leave the double in, hoping to score a juicy penalty against one spade doubled.

Why Saulino failed to pass at this point and opted to bid two spades is an unsolved mystery — but the fact is that he did bid two spades. East was of course more confident that he could beat two spades rather than one, and accordingly he doubled.

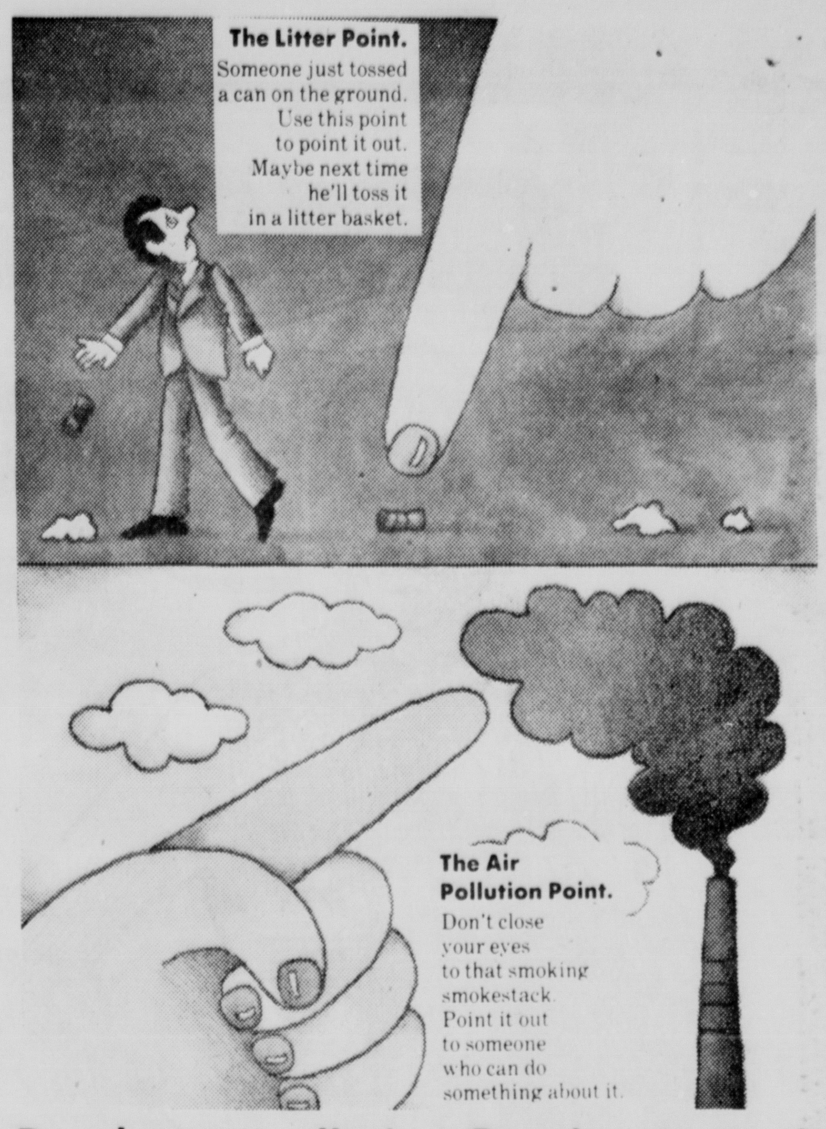

West led the ace and another diamond. Saulino ruffed in dummy, cashed the A-Q of clubs, ruffed another diamond, cashed the king of clubs, ruffed a club, and exited with a heart. By now, declarer had scored six tricks and could not be stopped from scoring two more in trumps, so he would up making two spades doubled for 670 points.

Due to the quirks of match-point scoring, Saulino gained very little by his fancy footwork. Had he passed one spade doubled and made the contract with an overtrick, he would have earned 152 match points out of the maximum 156 that were possible.

But by stumbling into two spades doubled — and scoring a game instead of simply a part score — Saulino scored only 155 match points. This was hardly worth all the stress and strain, but it did furnish the tournament with a good story.

Urban Areas May Get Boost

CHICAGO (AP) — The energy crisis could trigger a widescale rehabilitation of America's rundown urban areas, says a Chicago developer.

Joseph Moss, a pioneer condominium converter, said many persons who once scoured the faraway suburbs for quality housing might begin to return to the central city.

"If the transportation problem becomes a reality, those who have to be in the central city, or want to be in the central city, are going to think very hard about making a commitment far away from their needs," Moss said.

"If this comes about, we will see two things. First, there will be a massive rehabilitation of buildings in the central city. And second, there will be great pressure to tear down old structures and put up new ones," he said.

Because of the tax advantage and an innate desire on the part of many persons to own rather than rent, Moss foresees many apartment buildings undergoing conversion to condominiums.

"Once you have owners instead of renters, you will quickly see areas which are now run down becoming rehabilitated and desirable pieces of real estate," he said.

Moss' first building conversion was a 16-apartment unit in which he was a tenant 10 years ago. "Frankly, the landlord didn't want to do too much about maintaining the building so the tenants got together and bought it."

"It was funny," Moss recalled. "People who complained about a $10 a month increase in rent began voting themselves assessments of $200 and $300 to get things fixed."

Moss currently is converting the 40-story Outer Drive East building which contains 940 apartments a few blocks from downtown Chicago.

"Not a person who comes in to look at an apartment fails to say, 'At least here, I won't have to worry about transportation,'" Moss said.

Moss, president of Nationwide Condominium Corp., also predicted that central city property currently available at modest prices will quickly appreciate in value. "We've seen the value of real estate in the suburbs go up 5, 6 and 8 per cent a year in the last 10 years . . . Now, that may come to a halt and real estate in the city will begin to escalate quickly."

Eventually, Moss said, real estate in the city may become so desirable and costly that people again will go hunting in the far off suburbs for reasonably priced housing.

"Everything goes in cycles," he said.

Missing Women Call Home, Report Safety

Titusville, Fla. (AP) — An investigation into the recent, separate deaths of four females whose bodies were found in a wooded area near here has resulted in locating about 10 missing young women, police say.

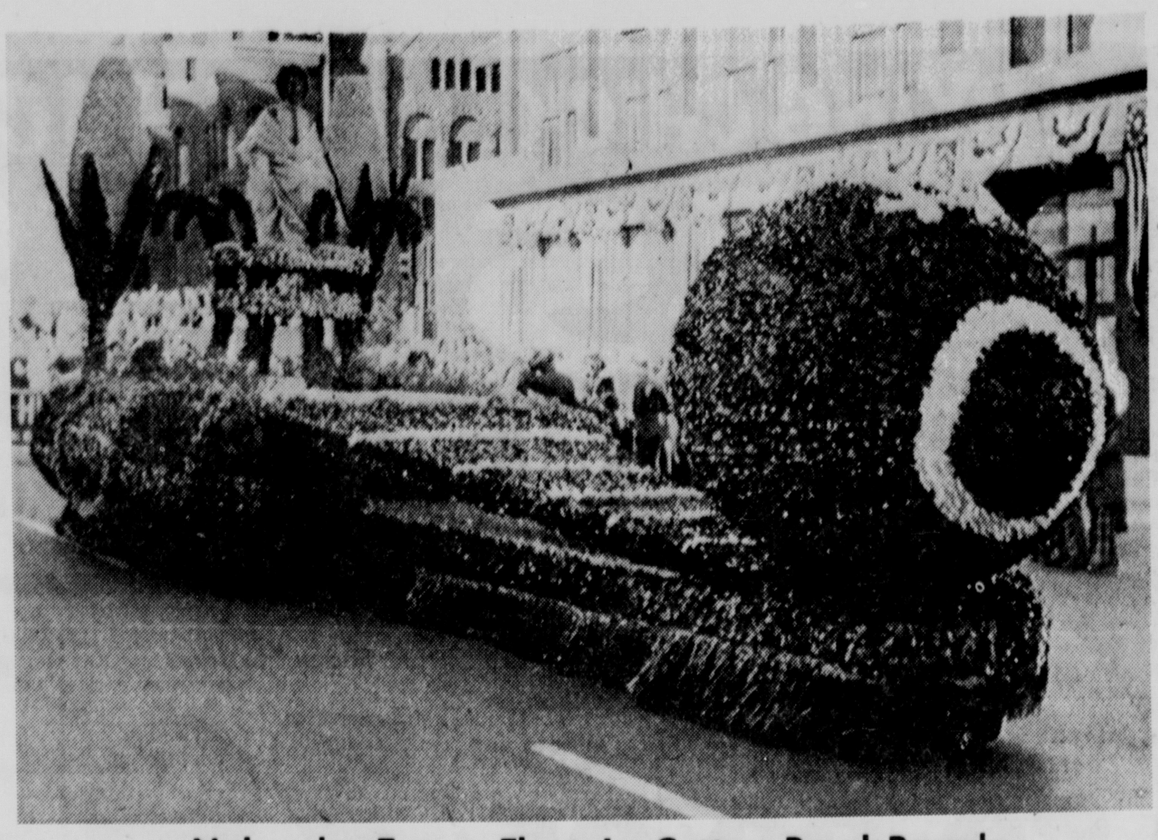

After the remains of four murdered females were found, investigators began checking to see if a dozen other young women listed as missing in Brevard County also may have been victims of the same killer.

"We now only have two, or possibly three women listed as missing," said Inspector James Garvin of the Brevard County Sheriff's Department on Tuesday.

"As soon as we started rechecking the cases of the missing women they either called home to tell their parents they were safe or returned home," Garvin said.

Garvin said teams of deputies spent New Year's Day trudging through the eight-mile long orange grove and wooded area where the four murder victims have been found since Thanksgiving.

"In each case the body was either nude or partially nude," an investigator said. "All the bodies had been dumped on the ground and no attempt made to bury them."

Nebraska Enters Float In Cotton Bowl Parade

Nebraska was represented in the annual Cotton Bowl parade in Dallas Tuesday morning by this float.

Nixon Relaxes In Front of TV

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon relaxed Tuesday in front of the television set, tuning in on New Year's Day football bowl games after spending a quiet New Year's Eve with his family.

Aides said Nixon's friend and Florida neighbor, C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, was flying to California by commercial jet — an indication Nixon's working vacation here would last the rest of the week.

The President still has before him 13 pieces of legislation, the remnants of the nearly 50 bills sent him by Congress in the days before it adjourned Dec. 22. A spokesman said he expected no action on the remaining bills Tuesday.

Meir Pondering Election Setbacks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Premier Golda Meir met with advisers Tuesday to weigh her government's election setbacks. The right-wing opposition claimed its strong showing proved Israelis are in no mood for concessions to the Arabs.

Mrs. Meir's grouping of Socialist parties appeared headed for the barest of plurality victories, with more than one-third of the votes counted. The major opposition, the right-wing Likud bloc, was running a strong second, well above its showing four years ago.

Likud leader Menahem Begin, a onetime anti-British terrorist, claimed the government's losses and his coalition's gains were a victory for hawks who oppose large concessions at the Middle East peace talks in Geneva.

An unofficial partial vote count gave the Labor alignment 41.9 per cent — the smallest mandate ever for the Socialist party coalitions that have been in power all 25 years of Israel's existence.

The alignment polled 46.2 per cent four years ago and looked strong until the October war against the Arabs. But it came under sharp criticism for Israeli losses at the beginning of the war.

Election analysts predicted the Meir alignment might fill 51 seats in the 120-member Knesset, the Israeli parliament. That would be a loss of five seats.

Begin's Likud, or Unity, bloc polled 27.1 per cent and was thought to have picked up six seats for a total of 38.

The count of votes from Israeli front line soldiers was expected to take several days. With much of the Israeli work force mobilized on the cease-fire lines, the military vote possibly could change the results, but analysts were not expecting a drastic shift.

Many political observers felt that if Mrs. Meir can receive a mandate to form a new government with the same coalition, she will have to make concessions to hawks in the peace talks with the Arabs.

Labor's traditional partner, the National Religious party, which was expected to win five seats, must be invited to return to the cabinet. The party has adopted a hard-line position on returning captured Arab lands, the main question at the peace talks.

Mrs. Meir says she will be flexible on the subject of territory. Begin and the National Religious party take an opposite view.

Israel's negotiators at the military talks in Geneva were expected to return to Switzerland Wednesday or Thursday, officials said.

Mrs. Meir also called her outgoing cabinet into session to discuss the negotiating positions. No details of the meeting were released.

Arab territory was obviously uppermost in Begin's mind when he told a postelection rally: "Now there is a clear majority against any proposal to repartition the land of Israel. This should be known all over the world, in the capitals and amongst the nations."

Closely watching the results in a private room at Labor party headquarters, Mrs. Meir refused to comment on the results. But her transport minister, Shimon Peres, indicated that Labor might have difficulty finding partners in the formation of a new government.

"It will take a little bit of time and a great deal of bargaining to create this government," Peres said.

Labor party election chief Avraham Ofer said Labor's difficulties might be so great that new elections may have to be called within one year.

The Moscow-aligned Rakah Communist party also showed increased strength, apparently cashing in on an upsurge of nationalist sentiment by Israeli Arabs following the October war. About half Rakah's support comes from Arabs who support its anti-Zionist line.

Detroit Logs First Killing At 12:01 a.m.

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit, which leads the nation in per capita killings, logged its first fatal shooting at 12:01 a.m. New Year's Day.

Police reported four slayings Tuesday.

The first victim, General Johnson, 46, died three hours after he was shot while standing at a street corner. Police said Johnson apparently was hit by a stray bullet fired by an unknown person celebrating the New Year.

Detroit had a record 750 homicides in 1973, 57 ahead of the 1972 record. Four homicides were reported on New Year's Day 1973.

Powerful Chinese Is Demoted

©The New York Times

Hong Kong — One of China's most powerful military men has been removed from an entrenched and important position he had held since 1954, and Hong Kong analysts of Peking affairs attach major significance to the move.

The official is Hsu Shih-yu, a member of China's Communist Party Politburo, who has been shifted from the command of the Nanking military region to that of the Canton region.

As commander at Nanking, Hsu was in charge of military forces in Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhwei and the special municipality of Shanghai — an area of great economic and strategic importance. The command at Canton encompasses Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Hunan, also an area of great importance but with slightly less weight in national affairs than the east China area.

The shift looks to observers like a demotion for Hsu, particularly since it removes him from a region where he had a long-established network of power to one where he will, at least for some time, lack such underpinnings of authority.

The transfer came after months of propaganda in publicity media in China that had praised the ancient tyrant emporor Chin Shih-huang for having smashed the power of feudal princes and established strong, central domination over regional and local authorities.

Regional and military commanders and, indeed, the military establishment as a whole in China acquired a great accretion of power during the cultural revolution that began in 1966. This upheaval shattered civilian authority throughout the country, leaving the military as the only remaining disciplined, controllable force.

Country In Turmoil

The military had to be called upon to establish order when the struggle between rival factions threw large parts of the country into turmoil. As conditions quieted down, military men continued and still continue to hold many positions of power to central and provincial party and government bodies.

Lin Piao, minister of defense and the man Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung had chosen to be his deputy and successor, was at the apex of this military power until he was exposed in an alleged attempt to assassinate Mao. Lin reportedly died in an attempt to flee in an airplane to the Soviet Union in late 1971.

Since the Lin incident the Peking leadership has redoubled efforts to retract much of the special power that fell to the military during the cultural revolution and particularly to purge or demote from key positions throughout the country members of the Lin faction.

Hsu has never definitely been identified in the Lin faction, but he nevertheless had a command of top importance under Lin. He disappeared from public view for months at the same time that Lin, Chief of Staff Huang Yung-sheng, Air Force Commander Wu Fa-hsien and others dropped from sight.

No Trouble Indicated

Nevertheless, in early 1972 Hsu's name again began to be reported at his Nanking post with no indication that he had ever been in trouble. When he was reaffirmed in his Politburo membership after the 10th Party Congress last August, it appeared that his status was solid and secure.

Hsu and Chen Hsi-lien, commander of the Northeast China front at the Soviet boarder as chief of the Shanyang military region, are the only two regional commanders who are Politburo members.

Hsu's transfer appears to be a part of the process that Peking leadership has been trying to advance in the last two years of slowly diminishing the power position of the military. There were fewer military men in the Central Committee elected at the August Party Congress than in the previous central committee; there are today somewhat fewer military men in top central and provincial government positions than a year ago; since late 1971 Lin Piao commanders have been replaced as chief of the Chengtu, Sinkiang and Peking military regions and dozens of lesser Lin faction members ousted.

Hsu's reassignment could represent a show of strength by the Mao-premier Chou En-lai diumvirate in Peking. It could, on the other hand, have been engineered by the faction that has come to be known in China-watching circles here as the Shanghai mafia.

The Shanghai faction includes Mao's wife, Chiang Ching; the Shanghai top boss and Politburo member, Chang Chun-chiao and the Politburo member, Yao Wen-yuan who is the new political commissar of the Nanking military region.

Soviets Activate Nuclear Station Close To Alaska

©The New York Times

New York — The Soviet Union, moving ahead with an active nuclear-power program, has started up the world's northernmost reactor, in a remote corner of Siberia facing Alaska.

Moscow newspapers report the first of four 12,000-kilowatt units at the gold-mining center of Bilibino has achieved the critical stage, meaning that the power-generating fission chain reaction has begun. After preliminary physics tests over a two-week period, the station is expected to begin producing electricity this month.

Firemen Help Clean Up Water

Firemen were busy for about three hours Tuesday evening cleaning up water from a broken water line in Lancaster Manor.

Firemen said a "T" connection behind the chapel broke and water gushed from the two-inch line for over a half hour before it could be shut off.

Smew Seen

BRANTFORD, Ont. (AP) — Naturalists reported seeing a smew — a small European type of duck — for the first time in North America. Smews normally are found in the Mediterranean in winter. Some naturalists speculated the duck might have been blown off course during a fall migration.

Council Bluffs Residents See Last Picture Show

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP)—The western Iowa city of Council Bluffs now is without a standard movie house. The Strand Theater closed down after its last performance Monday night.

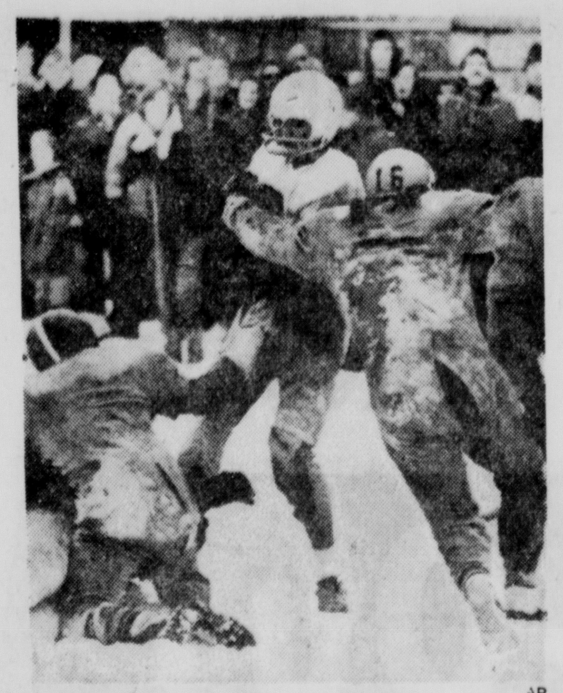

The only other theaters in the city of 60,000 persons are the Crest Art Theater and a drive-in theater.

Though the closing was news to most Bluffs' movie goers, Manager Shelby Doty of the Fox Theater in Omaha said it had been in the plans for six months.

He said Mann Theaters of Los Angeles, which also operates the Fox Theater, gave six months notice last July it was dropping its lease of the Strand.

Doty said he had seen no revenue figures on the Strand, but he "would assume" the lease was dropped because the theater was not making money.

The theater's final program was a double feature, "Play It Again, Sam," and "Paper Moon."

Garbage Bowl Ends In Tie

A Montreal suburb, Montreal West, held its annual Garbage Bowl Tuesday to raise money for needy children. The Garbage Bowl battle started 25 years ago as a spoof on all the U.S. bowl games played on New Year's Day. Players wear longjohns over their equipment. Here two Montreal West players (with trap doors open) try to pull down a South ball carrier. The game ended in a 0-0 tie.

Ed Nixon 'Paid To Do Nothing'

Alderwood Manor, Wash. (UPI) — Mrs. Edward Nixon, sister-in-law of the President, says it's "tough" to be left home alone with the couple's two children while her husband is "off being paid to do nothing."

Mrs. Nixon's remarks were made when reporters attempted to interview her husband at the family's suburban Seattle home about consultant fees he was paid in connection with the proposed Nixon library.

She said her husband was not at home.

"I don't want any publicity," Mrs. Nixon told reporters. "While he's off being paid to do nothing, I'm here alone.

"I'm trying to teach school and I've got two kids. And let me tell you, it's tough.

"I could tell you what he did, but I'm not going to."

Payment of $21,000 was made to Edward Nixon to find out where the Nixon family would like the library to be located, according to a report made public by the Richard Nixon Foundation in California.

Edward Nixon, a trustee of the foundation, was paid $1,500 a month for 14 months beginning in December, 1970, to find a location for the library.

Mrs. Nixon said that the foundation "folded in August. Its work was done."

Body Shoppe Trip Costs Man $13,146

©The New York Times

Fort Worth — Harry Vann says he drove into this city from Montezume, Kan., on a sunny Monday afternoon last August, walked into a flashy strip joint on main street and for one night in his life was a big spender.

He wrote 32 checks totaling $13,146 to the Body Shoppe Club and never got anything stronger in return than artificial champagne and some smiles from a few girls, he said.

Now Harry Vann and the Body Shoppe are in a legal tug of war in federal court here.

The day after Vann's big night in Fort Worth, he stopped payment on his checks, he said, realizing he had paid from $48 to $300 per bottle for nonalcoholic "Champagnette." This move by Vann upset the Body Shoppe manager, J. R. Thomas, who had caught the first plane to Dodge City, Kan., then rented a car to go to Montezuma and cash his customer's checks.

Thomas filed suit in federal court for $13,000 for goods and services rendered, plus $26,000 in punitive damages.

Last week, Vann filed his own federal lawsuit, saying the Body Shoppe had misrepresented the nature of the goods he bought and that his signatures on the checks were obtained "through a scheme of misrepresentation which resulted in (Vann's) suffering mental anguish, public embarrassment and humiliation."

Saying he was the victim of unfair trade practices and violations of consumer protection laws, Vann is asking the court to award him $10,000 in actual damages, which could bring triple that amount under consumer protection statutes, provided he wins in court.

According to Vann, he originally entered the Body Shoppe out of curiosity. "When we started to leave," recalls the Kansas resident, "one of them girls — she didn't have much on — asked me if we wouldn't like to buy her a little champagne. She was pretty good lookin', so I asked her if she'd take a check for it. Actually, I was just pulling her leg but she says, yeah she'd take a check for a $48 bottle."

Vann says that 32 checks later he had run out of blank checks.

In the wake of publicity over the Body Shoppe's lawsuit against Vann, this city has enacted an ordinance prohibiting the use of females to entice customers into buying merchandise. Previously, establishments in Texas where alcoholic beverages are not served were not covered by such laws.

400 Riders 'Celebrate' On Cool Stalled Zephyr

Galesburg, Ill. (UPI) — More than 400 passengers aboard Amtrak's Denver Zephyr "celebrated" New Year's Eve aboard chilled cars of the passenger train stalled here for 13 hours.

Some of the passengers were angry. They said they were kept on the train five hours without any heat. One complained that they got hungry.

Salvation Army workers passed out coffee and fruit cake about nine hours after the unexpected stopover began. One passenger said the fruit cake reminded him of the miracle of the loaves and fishes Jesus used to feed the multitudes.

"These things happen but it seems to me that nobody was paid to think," another passenger said. "If they would have brought in some coffee early in the evening, it would have made things much better."

A spokesman for the Burlington Northern, which operates the Chicago-to-Denver train, said a series of mechanical troubles was responsible for the delay, which began about 7 p.m. Monday.

A steam boiler went out on one engine unit in the near zero temperatures between Chicago and Galesburg, the spokesman said.

Then a train employe mistakenly added water to a diesel fuel line on another engine, he said. Then a fuel line froze.

Finally, lines on three of the 15 passenger cars froze as temperatures dropped to 6 below zero.

HUSKERS HOOK HORNS, 19-3

. . . Runty Out Of Shadow

STAFF PHOTO

NOT QUITE . . . Nebraska's Tony Davis (25) is stopped short of the goal line by Texas' Wade Johnston (35) and Glen Gaspard (38).

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Dallas — Steve Runty, who launched Nebraska's 1973 season by directing the Huskers to a 40-13 win over UCLA, came off the bench here Tuesday to close that season with a 19-3 Cotton Bowl triumph over Texas.

Runty, a senior from Ogallala who came to Nebraska without a scholarship and who has sat in the shadow of someone throughout his NU stay of five years, directed the Huskers to two second half touchdowns, breaking a 3-3 halftime deadlock.

The Huskers' second half scoring surge made what had been a dull afternoon a little more fun for the nearly 20,000 Nebraskans sitting in 30 degree temperatures in the Cotton Bowl Stadium.

But while Runty's entrance into the contest seemed to most of the writers sitting in an unheated press box and most of the 67,500 fans freezing in the stands to spark the Huskers, NU head coach Tom Osborne didn't agree.

"I don't think the fact that we made the quarterback change had anything to do with us winning the game," Osborne told writers as they swarmed around him in a jammed with people Husker dressing room.

"We had planned on playing both quarterbacks (Runty and David Humm) about an equal amount of time," he added.

However, both Humm and Runty denied they knew of such a plan.

Osborne pointed out that he was more concerned with his Huskers re-establishing who was in charge at halftime than he was in who his quarterback would be.

"Texas was jumping up and down and hollering," Osborne explained, "And we had to show them who was in charge."

The reason the Longhorns were jumping up and down and hollering was that they headed for the halftime intermission just after having held the Huskers out of their end zone on four straight tries from the one-yard line.

The Huskers had taken over at their own 20 after Billy Schoot's 44-yard field goal attempt had hit the left upright with 5:14 left in the half.

When Humm found split end Frosty Anderson with a 20-yard pass, the Huskers had a first and goal from the one.

Humm tried to sneak it over, but was stopped by Longhorn linebacker Wade Johnston. Tony Davis tried to dive over a pile, but was stopped by Wade Johnson. Davis tried again and again was met by Johnston. After a time out to discuss the situation, fullback Maury Damkroger was given a chance. But he too was met and stopped by Johnston.

That performance earned Johnston defensive player of the game honors with the offensive laurels going to Nebraska's Davis, who gained 106 yards on 28 carries.

Despite the halftime emphasis on taking charge, it took the Huskers a while to establish who was in control.

Texas took the second half kickoff and marched from the Longhorn 29 to the NU 22 for its best drive of the day.

On a third and seven play from the 22, Longhorn Lonnie Bennett had beaten Husker safety Bob Thornton and was waiting in the end zone for quarterback Marty Akins' pass.

It never got there as Akins threw short and Thornton intercepted, giving the Huskers the ball at their own 20.

Runty stepped in under center Rik Bonness for the first time in the game and after three plays, the Huskers were lining up for their first punt of the day, still looking to establish who was in control.

The Huskers finally established that moments later, after Mike Dean's 54-yard field goal effort was short and was returned to the Nebraska 41 by Thornton.

Runty stayed at quarterback and the Huskers began running right at the Longhorns.

Maury Damkroger went up the middle for 11, Davis went up the middle for 12, Runty passed to Bahe for 17.

Then with second and eight at the Texas 12, Bahe took a handoff from Runty on the same inside reverse that had worked so well in the opening win over UCLA.

It worked just as well against Texas as Bahe scored the first TD of the afternoon with 3:05 left in the third quarter and Rich Sanger's extra point kick made it 10-3.

The touchdown broke a six-quarter TD drought for the Huskers, who hadn't crossed an opponent's goal line since the next-to-last game of the regular season against Kansas State.

Osborne's halftime timetable had called for the first five minutes of the second half to be very important to the Huskers in establishing themselves as the better team.

It took the Huskers a bit longer than that.

But once they broke on top by 10-3, it didn't take long to get another one.

Husker all-American tackle John Dutton was wrapping himself around Akins at about the same time Akins was trying to pitch the ball away.

The result was a bad pitch which Husker middle guard John Bell out-wrestled Texan Bennett for the ball at the Longhorn 19.

Reserve fullback Ralph Powell moved it to the 13 and Davis put it at the three for a first down.

Rather than the four futile attempts up the middle at the end of the first half, this time Runty handed off to Davis, who followed a block from Powell and went around the right side into the end zone.

Despite the fact that Sanger's extra point kick was deflected, leaving the Huskers with a 16-3 margin, it was now becoming clearly evident who was in control.

Texas now was forced to go the air, something they hadn't done at all in their season finale with Texas A & M and something they hadn't done successfully for the first three quarters against the Huskers.

When reserve quarterback Mike Presley hit Joe Aboussie with a five-yarder on the next-to-last play of the third quarter, it was Texas' first pass completion in seven quarters of football.

But the Longhorns, who had discovered earlier they couldn't run against the Huskers, found they could not pass, either.

The Husker defense held Texas to just 106 yards rushing and all-American fullback Roosevelt Leaks, who missed part of the game with a bruised knee, gained only 48 yards on 15 carries.

The Longhorns had been the fifth best rushing team in the nation, averaging 550.8 yards per game in 10 regular season contests.

Turnovers and penalties stymied both teams' scoring efforts in the first half, although the Longhorns drove to their opening field goal the first time they had the ball, starting with Johnston's recovery of a Davis fumble at the NU 34 on the fourth play of the game.

Billy Schott's field goal from the 12 gave the Longhorns the lead with 9:30 left in the opening period. When the Huskers came back to win, it stretched the string to five straight the number of teams that had scored first, then lost the Cotton Bowl Classic.

The Huskers got those three points back on Sanger's 24-yard field goal with 9:05 left in the first half, a field goal set up by Husker defensive end Steve Manstedt's 65-yard return of a fumble by Leaks.

Manstedt's return put the ball at the Texas eight. It also created the biggest controversy of the afternoon.

One official threw his hat down at the point where Manstedt grabbed the ball and signaled the play dead, claiming the ball had hit the ground.

Husker safety Thornton kicked the cap in disgust and Husker coach Osborne charged onto the field to argue the decision.

Two other officials agreed that Manstedt had picked the ball off in the air and with the vote standing at two-to-one, the Huskers were given the ball at the eight.

CBS-TV's instant replay showed the ball bounced off Leaks' shoe. Had the ball hit the ground, it could not have been advanced by Manstedt.

The victory ended the Huskers season at 9-2-1, identical to last year when they romped over Notre Dame, 40-6, in the Orange Bowl.

It was Nebraska's fifth straight bowl victory, something no team has ever accomplished. The last bowl loss by Nebraska came in the 1967 Sugar Bowl, a 34-7 drubbing by Alabama, which was the Crimson Tide's last bowl victory.

In the last five bowls, Nebraska has beaten Georgia in the Sun Bowl, LSU, Alabama and Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl and Texas here Tuesday.

Second-Half Start Stunned Runty

By RANDY YORK

Dallas, Tex. — It couldn't have been called open heart surgery. But when Steve Runty heard Tom Osborne say his name at halftime of the Cotton Bowl here Tuesday afternoon, the senior Nebraska quarterback felt as if he had just undergone a transplant.

"My heart started beating faster when coach Osborne told me I was going to start the second half. I could hear it," Runty told a sizable cluster of sports writers hovering around him in the locker room shortly after Nebraska's 19-3 win over Texas.

"It surprised me completely," Runty said of Osborne's decision to put him at the helm after the two powers had battled to a 3-3 halftime standoff. "To tell the truth, I was wondering if I'd get to play. When coach announced right before half that I'd start, I was anxious to go out and push the ball down Texas' throat . . . expecially after the way they held us the last four plays on the one in the first half."

For Runty, who's contributed five years of exceptionally hard work to Nebraska's football program, the chance symbolized his desire to "keep faith" despite an obvious disenchantment over a lack of playing time.

To junior Dave Humm, the one behind whom Runty has played the last two years, bowing out the second half was not such a major disappointment.

"Steve deserved it," offered Humm. "He's run our scout team. He's played behind people and never complained. I knew his break would happen. Sometimes, a change of quarterback is the big difference. Steve's a good quarterback, He showed that again."

"It's a whole different ball game between playing and sitting on the bench," emphasizes Runty, who led Nebraska to a decisive win over UCLA in the season opener before assuming a substitute's role.

Runty, however, discounts an "armchair quarterback" belief that Nebraska may have fared better this season had he been a starter. "Ifs never prove anything," he said, "so I hope people don't start talking about them."

Asked if he had ever contemplated quitting the squad during the season, Runty replied that "it never entered my mind once. I've had too many letters of encouragement from fans across the state. They've kept me going."

Most writers seemed to accept Runty's declaration that he had never contemplated quitting, although many of his close friends and teammates gathered around him knew otherwise.

Fremont junior Ritch Bahe, whose 12-yard scoring scamper late in the third quarter ended the field goal duel, cited Runty's inspirational leadership in Nebraska's collegiate record fifth straight bowl victory.

"After we scored the first time, Steve told us to stay fired up because we were going to blow 'em out and go down again to score," acknowledged Bahe, "He seems to say something before almost every play besides calling the play itself. We all respect Dave Humm and have complete confidence in him. But we were all happy for Steve Runty, too."

Bahe, crediting tackle Marvin Crenshaw's crunching block on an inside trap on his touchdown effort, called the win "a springboard for next year. This win was so important for our whole program.

"After we had looked so poorly on national television against Oklahoma," he explained, "we knew we had to prove ourselves here for the years to come. We were aware of how much importance rode on it for recruiting."

Nebraska defensive tackle John Dutton, embroiled in a displinary incident which cost him his captaincy for the Cotton Bowl, noted that Tuesday's game meant more to him than perhaps it did to most players.

"It was very important for me to look good," Dutton said. "Not so much for the pro draft or for myself, but to go out a winner and prove that I play mostly for my teammates.

"I had to leave a good taste in everyone's mouth," he added. "I had to prove that I'm not a big guy who plays just for himself. That squabble a couple of weeks ago (when he was temporarily suspended from the team because of an apparant misunderstanding between himself and coaches) caused a lot of misunderstandings.

"People started to view me as a lazy guy who didn't want to work. And that wasn't the case at all," Dutton said. "I got about 15 or 20 letters from all over, even Colorado. All of them were negative. At least one of them called me a militant. That wouldn't have happened if the press hadn't blown the thing so far out of proportion."

Another Nebraska defender who hasn't been experiencing a romance with the press, middle guard John Bell, said he'd leave all-star decisions up to others.

But Bell may have cast his own ballot for such honors after battling Texas all-American center Bill Wyman, whom most coaches believe outbattled Oklahoma all-American Lucious Selmon earlier in the season.

"We were probably pretty well even," Bell said of his matchup with Wyman. "But my main job was to keep him off our linebackers. That's what he does best. I'll have to see films to confirm it, but I don't think he got to our linebackers once. Texas lives on Roosevelt Leaks up the middle. They didn't run there today."

Nebraska sophomore I-back Tony Davis, who viewed the Cotton Bowl as a personal matchup between himself and Leaks, clearly won the statistical battle, 106 yards to 48 yards.

"But I didn't really win the battle because he (Leaks) wasn't at full speed, so the whole thing doesn't count," Davis pointed out after being named the game's outstanding offensive player.

"We just moved better in the second half," according to Davis. "We went out and went to work. Humm played well, but we didn't get it in the end zone for him. That's probably why the coaches decided to change quarterbacks."

Cornhusker all-American tackle and co-captain, Daryl White, accepted most of Nebraska's failure to score just before halftime as a breakdown in the line.

"We should have tried outside instead of up the middle four times," he admitted, "but when we didn't spring our backs through there, we came out the second half even more determined and opened a lot of gaping holes."

Defensive back Randy Borg said the Cotton Bowl, despite not offering much high national ranking significance, "was the whole ball of wax for us seniors. It was four years of spring practices, wind sprints and bed checks.

"We weren't about to blow all that in one game and lose a chance at that national record of five straight bowl wins," Borg said.

"It wasn't just a case of redemption against Oklahoma," he added. "We had to show again that our coaches are the best and most organized in the nation.

"We switched our defensive keys so well that Texas would have had to change its whole blocking scheme or call audibles the whole game to compensate," offered Borg. "That's what coaching is. Bell showed how underrated he is and (Tom) Ruud and (Bob) Nelson just had a field day of linebacker."

After rehashing the game at length with newspaper writers and radio and television reporters, the players' attention turned to various other post-season contests and the inevitable-talk about next year.

"We should be real good and solid again next year," predicts wingback Bahe. "I'd like to think we can go all the way next year. I know it's a long way off. But I'll guarantee you we'll start thinking about that pretty soon."

Meanwhile, the Cornhusker squad seemed ready to split up after accomplishing its unified purpose of a fifth consecutive post-season victory.

Bell and defensive backs Bob Thornton and Zaven Yaralian were to leave Tuesday night for Tampa (Fla.) to compete in Sunday's American Bowl.

White, Dutton and kicking specialist Rich Sanger are slated to compete in the Senior Bowl at Mobile (Ala.) Jan. 12 in a game which will start what they hope will be professional careers.

Penn State Holds Off LSU, 16-9

MIAMI (UPI) — Speedy receiver Chuck Herd made a sensational one-handed catch midway through the second period Tuesday night to turn an apparently overthrown pass into a 72-yard touchdown play and spark fifth-ranked Penn State to a 16-9 Orange Bowl victory over Louisiana State.

Johnson Paces Ohio State To Rose Bowl Victory

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Pete Johnson, a huge freshman fullback blasted for three touchdowns, Ohio State added a passing attack by Cornelius Greene and the Buckeyes whipped Southern California 42-21 Tuesday, ending the Big Ten's four-game losing streak in the Rose Bowl.

Neal Colvie added his part with a 56-yard punt return to the Trojan nine late in the third period and four plays later Greene sprinted off his right tackle from a yard out, putting his club ahead to stay.

Until that point, the Buckeyes had trailed 21-20 despite two touchdown plunges of one yard and one of four by the 238-pound Johnson, a first-year powerhouse from Long Beach, N. Y.

After Greene's touchdown, the Buckeyes became even more explosive. First came a 52-yard drive in five plays, a Greene-to-Brian Baschnagel pass gaining 25 and Archie Griffin running another 25 before Bruce Elia plunged in from the two for the touchdown. Greene ran in that conversion for two points.

Minutes later, Griffin broke loose on a 47-yard touchdown run.

Griffin, the fleet running ace of the Buckeyes, set a Big Ten season record as he pushed his total to 1,577 yards. He gained 149 Tuesday.

So the Buckeyes justified the vote of the Big Ten athletic directors who sent the No. 4 nationally-ranked club to Pasadena instead of Michigan after the two undefeated clubs tied 10-10 in their final regular-season game.

A year ago, the Buckeyes had lost 42-17 to the national-champion Trojans, who this year were ranked seventh nationally by The Associated Press with a 9-1-1 record. The Buckeyes came to Pasadena for this 59th renewal of college football's oldest post-season classics with a 9-0-1 showing.

Little Chris Limahelu booted a pair of field goals for the Trojans of 47 and 42 yards, the longest of his career. Jake McKay, son of Trojan Coach John McKay, caught a 10-yard touchdown pass from Anthony Davis and Davis ran one yard for the second Trojan touchdown before a full-house crowd of 105,267.

Quarterback Pat Haden passed to McKay for a two point conversion and Limahelu added one kicking.

The Trojans clung to their 21-20 lead when Clarles Phillips blocked Blair Conway's third conversion attempt.

Although it had rained during the night, the field was dry for the game, which was played under intermittent clouds.

The Big Ten built its over-all Rose Bowl record to 18-10 since its pact with the Pac-8 started in 1947.

However, during the past 10 years, the Pac-8 had dominated with a 7-3 record and the Midwesterners put Coach Woody Hayes and his Buckeyes firmly on the spot to end that recent domination and return prestige to the Big Ten.

Greene completed five of seven passes for 129 yards as his throwing proved decisive on several occasions—disproving the theory that Ohio State lacked an aerial game. The 172-pound sophomore from Washington, D. C., was voted the game's outstanding player.

The Buckeyes gained 449 yards, 320 on the ground. Griffin gained his 149 in 22 carries, Johnson had 94 in 21 and Greene 45 in seven carries— most of them scrambles.

Southern California gained 406 yards with 239 passing. Haden completed 21 of 39 throws for 229 yards. Greene had one intercepted and Haden none.

Davis, a star high school quarterback, but a running star with USC, completed his first pass of this season with his 10-yard touchdown throw to McKay. On the ground, he gained 74 yards in 16 carries.

A free-for-all broke out in the final minute of the opening half when Ohio State defensive end Van DeCree slammed into Haden, who had run to the sidelines to stop the clock. Trojan tackle Booker Brown went after DeCree, other players quickly joined in, the coaches went into action to break up the melee — Hayes running the full width of the field to help end the fight as a national television audience looked on.

Limahelu put the Trojans ahead 3-0 with just 2:33 gone, capping an 11-play drive with only two of them on the ground as Haden went to the air early.

The 47-yard field goal was the second longest in Rose Bowl history and the longest ever by a Trojan. Steve Horowitz of Stanford had kicked 48 yards against the Buckeyes in the 1971 Rose Bowl, and Courtney Decius booted 45 for the USC school record back in 1909.

Ohio State pounded back for a 7-3 first-quarter edge with an 80-yard drive taking 18 plays. An offside penalty against Southern California that kept the march going when it stalled.

Griffin and Johnson shared the running load to reach the USC 19 with fourth down and six yards to go. Hayes sent in kicker Conway. He missed his 37-yard attempt, but a Trojan had jumped offside. With fourth and one, the Buckeyes abandoned the field goal and returned to the ground with Griffin gaining the needed yard.

Four straight carries by Johnson brought the touchdown.

Limahelu's 42-yard field goal cut the Buckeye edge to 7-6.

Then USC flashed its razzle-dazzle to move ahead with 9:44 gone in the second quarter. Haden handed to Davis, who pitched a left-handed pass to Mckay for the touchdown. The Trojans added a two-point conversion as a beleaguered Haden pitched to a leaping McKay.

Not to be denied, the Buckeyes surged back 70 yards in 12 plays with Greene providing key passes of 11 yards to Fred Pagac and 14 to Dave Hazel—successive plays that reached the USC 45. Then the Buckeyes went back to the ground with Griffin and Johnson—the latter scoring with 51 seconds left in the half.

'Greatest Win' Says Hayes

Compiled From News Wires

"This was the greatest victory we've ever ever had," said a happy Woody Hayes after his Ohio State team humbled Southern California 42-21 in the Rose Bowl Tuesday.

"It was the greatest victory I've ever had, especially after the way we were beaten last year (42-17).

"It wasn't a game of spite or revenge. We just went in there and thought we had it coming to us. It was a matter of pride to us."

Hayes had praise for his own defensive team, which slowed the Trojans' passing attack in the second half.

"We did a great job on defense, and they had the ball an awful lot," he said.

"We cut off their passing game towards the end. And we felt we could pass on them. We made some great catches out there."

USC coach John McKay was also impressed with the Buckeyes' passing game anchored by quarterback Cornelius Greene.

"They can pass," McKay said. "We didn't know what they were going to do because all you writers told us they wouldn't pass.

"It wasn't that our players are too young. We just weren't good enough to win."

Freshman fullback Pete Johnson, who ran for 94 yards and three touchdowns in his busiest afternoon in college, was not surprised Hayes used him so much.

"I think earlier this season the coaches felt I'd be jumpy in the games because I'm a freshman," he explained. "But I proved to them in practice that I could do the job so they let me play.

"It makes me feel just great."

All America running back Archie Griffin, who paced the Buckeyes' ground game with 149 yards including a 47-yard touchdown romp, felt the win proved Big Ten teams can stand up to West Coast competition.

"I think this game proved the Big Ten can handle the Pacific 8 in the Rose Bowl," he said.

"The touchdown run was the same play we had fumbled on down near the USC goal line earlier," he said. "Cornelius Greene and I said, 'Let's get it together,' and I just ran for the hole."

Griffin, the Buckeyes' sensational sophomore tailback, said he couldn't sleep before rushing for 149 yards, including a 47-yard touchdown run against the Pacific-8 champions.

"I didn't sleep too well last night. Somebody kept singing the USC fight song outside my window," said Griffin, whose yardage gave him the Big Ten's one-season rushing record. Griffin finished with 1,577 yards, 83 ahead of the mark set by Eric "The Flea" Allen of Michigan State in 1971.

Hicks, the nation's best interior lineman as the Outland Trophy winner, said togetherness won for the Buckeyes, halting a four-game Big Ten losing streak in the Rose Bowl.

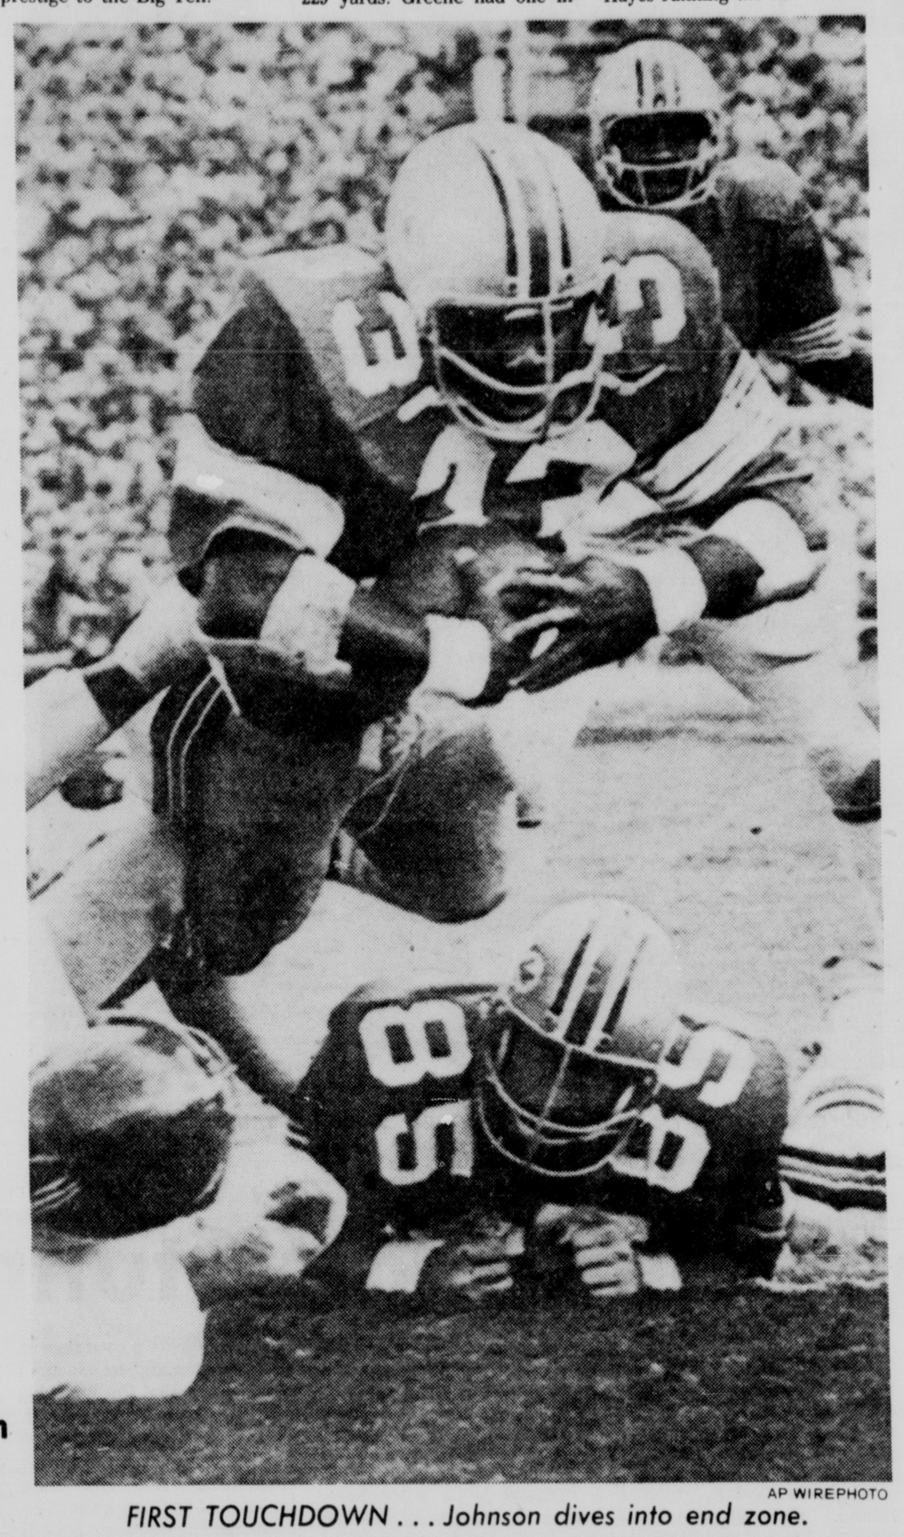

"I know the guys got tired of hearing it, but I told them to stick together for 60 minutes," said Hicks. "We knew in our hearts they couldn't stop us up front. We've worked too well together all year."

Colzie said he wasn't supposed to return the ball on the game's pivotal play, a 56-yard punt return to the USC nine. The return is up the Buckeyes' touchdown for a 27-21 lead.

"We had the punt block on," Colzie said. "I was supposed to fair catch the ball, but I saw a hold on the left side and took my chances."

While the five Buckeyes talked to writers, their teammates whooped it up in the Ohio State dressing room across the hall.

The Buckeyes kept chanting "We're No. 1, We're No. 1."

Oriole Pitcher Drowning Victim

Caracas (UPI) — Mark Weems, a 22-year-old California-born pitcher belonging to the Baltimore Orioles, drowned Sunday while swimming at a beach on the central coast of Venezuela, local authorities reported.

Weems disappeared while swimming at Patanemo Beach 100 miles west of Caracas, and rescue workers had still not recovered his body late Sunday.

Weems, from Azusa, Calif., played with Magallanes of the Venezuelan Winter League.

The righthanded relief pitcher was drafted by the Orioles in 1969 and last year played with Rochester of the International League where he had a 9-7 record.

During the Venezuelan season here he was the most effective relief pitcher in the league.

Americans Lose

Leningrad, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Finland beat the United States 5-1 Tuesday in the World Junior Hockey Tournament.

Larsen Upset By Sign

Irving, Tex. (UPI) — When Gary Larsen walked onto the field for the pre-game warmups Sunday it did not take him long to notice a 12-foot sign which some Cowboys fans had hung above the entrance to the tunnel to the Minnesota dressing room.

In two-foot high black, capital letters, the sign read: "Losers."

Right then, even before the kickoff, Larsen was ready to tear the sign down. But he waited. He waited until his club had won the NFC title over the Dallas Cowboys, 27-10.

As Larsen and his teammates stormed off the field, Larsen broke ranks, jumped in the air, grabbed the sign with his left fist and ripped it to the artificial turf.

"I saw that thing hanging up there the minute I walked onto the field," said the Vikings' defensive tackle, sweat dripping off the end of his blond walrus style mustache. "There was another sign hanging over the other tunnel that said 'Winners.'

"I'm all for the fans having their fun, but sometimes it gets to you.

"There are no losers on this ballclub. There are a great bunch of ball players on this club.

"When I saw that sign I just wanted to beat their butts."

Minnesota piled up a 10-point lead in the opening half before the game turned zany in the second two quarters, but Larsen had no thought of tearing the sign down at the intermission.

"Not many games in pro football are won 10-0," said Larsen. "I knew in the second half we were going to have to stay together and keep on them and I think that's what we did."

Then, as the game's end neared, Larsen was ready for his mission.

"I never forgot about that sign. Not once during the game," said Larsen. "With about three seconds left I knew I was going to rip it down."

Besides sign-ripping, Larsen played an important fumble recovery role for the Vikings in the turnover plagued second half.

He recovered a Roger Staubach fumble early in the final period and then with Dallas having one last chance to get back in the game with seven minutes remaining, Larsen pounced on a ball lost by Cowboys' fullback Walt Garrison on the Vikings one-yard line.

"I don't even know who hit him," said Larsen. "I was lying on the ground and suddenly there the ball was in front of me. All I had to do was scoop it in."

Royal Congratulates Huskers For Victory

From News Wires

Dallas — Darrell Royal had no regrets and he knew the best team had won, so he found it easy to pay a quick visit to the Nebraska dressing room Tuesday after his Longhorns were whipped by the Cornhuskers in the Cotton Bowl, 19-3.

"I want to congratulate you on your victory," Royal told the Cornhusker squad. "It was a good, clean football game and a well deserved victory.

"It was a one-sided game and I just hope that we can get another shot at you."

Back in his own dressing room Royal said he felt the obvious turning point in the game was the interception by Nebraska's Bob Thornton of a pass from Texas' Marty Akins early in the second half.

"I thought possibly we might have had an edge of the defender. We hung the ball in the air too long into the wind. The defensive man had time to recover and intercept.

"We had a chance to take the lead before that, but after that happened we never could get in close," said Royal.

"There was that wild lateral we had and the roughing the kicker penalty and tht field goal attempt of ours hitting the upright, but anyway you slice it we lost to a superior team.

"I was disappointed that we couldn't run inside. The goal-line stand gave us a lift at the end of the first half, but we had an inability to knock the ball in."

Roosevelt Leaks, who gained more than 1,400 yards during the season, was held to 48 yards Tuesday and his team rushed for a total of only 106. Leaks left the game briefly in the second half with a bruised knee.

"I tried not to worry about my knee and just did the best I could with what I had left," said Leaks. "But we never could get started. They were always in the right spots at the right time."

Sophomore quarterback Akins, who was removed in the final half in place of passminded quarterback Mike Presley, said he thought the scoreboard did not tell the true story of the game.

"I think we went well from the 20 to the 20, but the end zone is the name of the game," said Akins.

"There are no excuses. They beat us fair and square. I thought sure we could score at the start of the second half.

"I just wasn't throwing the ball as good as I believe I can throw it." But otherwise the Steers could not explain the lop-sided setback.

Riding the momentum of the great goal line stand just before halftime, the eighth-ranked Longhorns appeared stunned by the pass interception on the opening drive of the second half.

"We should have scored, and I thought we were going to," said Akins, who guided Texas to the Nebraska 22 before he threw the pass which was intercepted in the end zone by safety Thornton.

"I think the turning point was when we didn't get in and score then," Akins said. "I thought I threw it harder."

Meanwhile, Akins said he did not deliberately withhold the ball from Leaks.

"We gave Roosevelt the ball when we should have," he said.

Leaks also could not explain what happened on a second-period fumble that led to Nebraska's tying field goal.

Leaks was banged loose from the ball and Nebraska end Steve Manstedt tucked it in and lumbered 65 yards to the Texas eight-yard line.

In the confusion, the officials disagreed over whether the ball touched the ground, then ruled that it had not.

The fumbled ball apparently hit Leaks' foot and squirted into Manstedt's arms.

"I don't know what happened, man," Leaks said. "I didn't even see it."

Junior linebacker Wade Johnston, whose work in the first-half goal line stand kept Texas tied with Nebraska at the half, was reduced to tears near the end of the game.

"I guess," he said, wiping at his eyes, "that we just fell apart."

Parseghian Plugs Playoffs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian, laying claim to the national championship, renewed his battle Tuesday to have the colleges set up a football playoff system built around the existing bowls.

He suggested Duffy Daugherty, former coach at Michigan State, as a logical strong man to get the plan of an ultimate collegiate Super Bowl into operation.

"Somebody has to take the bull by the horns," Parseghian said. "Our game with Alabama is the greatest proof that some sort of official playoff is needed."

Third-ranked Notre Dame, a touchdown underdog, beat top-ranked Alabama in the 40th Sugar Bowl game Monday night—a 24-23 thriller which saw the lead change hands six times.

The victory, following a 10-0 regular season, made the Fighting Irish favorites to wind up atop the Associated Press' final poll of the season, to be released Thursday.

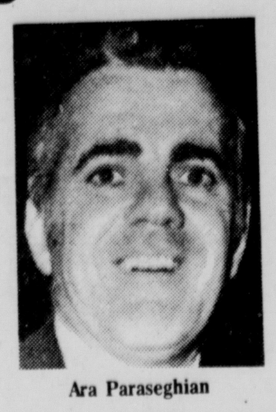

"I will be disappointed if we are not No. 1," Parseghian said. "I think we deserve it."

The Notre Dame coach said he would like to see a post-season playoff among 16 top teams, picked on a basis of their records by perhaps a special committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

"We have enough bowls now—in fact more than enough—to handle the procedure," he added.

"The final game could be rotated among the four major bowls—Rose, Sugar, Orange and Cotton."

The Sugar Bowl game, a unique matchup of perfect records and two teams of great tradition, proved an exciting spectacular before a record crowd of 85,161 and a reported 50 million television viewers.

Ara Paraseghian

Paul "Bear" Bryant

Both Parseghian and his rival, 60-year-old Bear Bryant, agreed that the fast-paced thriller was decided by a bold and successful gamble on the part of Notre Dame with three minutes to play.

Having gone ahead 24-23 on a 19-yard field goal by Bob Thomas, a senior from Rochester, N.Y., the Fighting Irish found themselves pushed against their goal line by a 69-yard punt from the foot of Alabama's Greg Gantt.

After two plunges by fullback Wayne Bullock and a penalty against them, the Irish were able to move only from the oneyard line to the three. It now was third down and eight for a first down, and there was a time out strategy huddle between Parseghian and his quarterback, Tom Clements.

On the next play, Clements rifled a 35-yard pass to tight end Robin Weber and Alabama's threat of a last-gasp triumph was snatched from its hands.

"I would have bet my life we were going to win the game after we had them back against the goal line," said a disappointed Bryant who suffered his sixth bowl defeat in his last seven appearences.

Parseghian acknowledged afterward that he called the vital pass play.

"If we have to punt from that position, we give the ball to Alabama at about the 40, and maybe closer if it's a bad kick, and a field goal beats us," the Notre Dame coach said.

"Still, there was some risk involved. Weber could slip and fall. Clements might not get the pass off. We might get caught back there for a safety which would win the game.

"At first, I thought the pass was overthrown. Then I saw it spiralling down toward Weber's arms and I whispered 'Please, don't drop it.'"

Weber, a 6-foot-5 238-pounder from Dallas, said, "the primary receiver was Dave Casper, but when Dave was covered, I knew Tom had to come to me. It was a perfect pass."

The game provided a number of ironies.

Alabama's Tom Davis, who had converted 51 of 53 extra point attempts during the season, missed after Alabama's last score in the fourth period. If he had made it, the final score would have been tied unless Notre Dame changed tactics on its final scoring drive.

"In that case, we would have gone for the touchdown from the three instead of the field goal," said Parseghian who was criticized for playing it safe in the closing minutes of the famous 10-10 tie with Michigan State in 1966, the Irish's last national championship season.

Thomas had missed two long field goal attempts early in the game.

Notre Dame dominated the first quarter, driving 64 yards to the first touchdown but missing the extra point because of a bad snap. In the second period, Alabama got its awesome Wishbone option attack clicking and made three long drives yet managed to score only 10 points.

After the Crimson Tide's first score, freshman Al Hunter burst through the entire Alabama team and raced 93 yards with the kickoff for a touchdown which, with a two-point pass conversion, put the Irish ahead 14-7. Bill Davis kicked a 39-yard field goal for Alabama just before the half.

The Crimson Tide, led by Gary Rutledge, Wilbur Jackson and Randy Billingsley, marched 93 yards for a touchdown to go ahead 17-14. But they fell behind 21-17 when Eric Penick scored after a fumble, then took the lead again on a trick razzle-dazzle play on which second-string quarterback Richard Todd scored.

Then came Davis' heart-breaking miss on the extra point and the dramatic climax.

"This has to be one of our greatest moments," Parseghian said later. "This was a team that believed in itself—it wouldn't be beaten."

Merger Termed Imminent

BALTIMORE (AP) — A merger between Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis and the new World Team Tennis league is "imminent," an informed source said Tuesday.

According to the source, negotiations are aimed at setting up an office in Dallas to run all professional tennis events, including the WTT which plans to open competition this year.

WTT would pay a $160,000 annual fee to Hunt, president of the Dallas-based WCT circuit, to head the combined operation, the source said.

"Negotiations are very serious. I'd say an agreement is imminent," the source said.

Neither Hunt nor George MacCall, WTT commissioner, were available for comment on the report.

Any merger between the WTT, with its list of stars including Billie Jean King, and the WCT, with its $1 million tour, would affect the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The USLTA, the United States' arm of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, has been battling the WCT for control of pro tennis in this country for several years. The ILTF has yet to sanction WTT play, although a meeting has been scheduled Jan. 26 reportedly to discuss sanctioning.

Five-Day Rest Part Of Plan By Vikings

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings are getting a five-day rest before resuming drills for their Jan. 13 Super Bowl date at Houston against the Miami Dolphins.

It may be part of coach Bud Grant's plan to avoid what he terms "battle fatigue."

After the 27-10 Vikings victory over the Dallas Cowboys Sunday, Grant indicated that Dallas may have been a tired team, weary from too many tough games in succession.

The Vikings won't do anything more strenuous than view films of Miami before a drill Saturday at the University of Minnesota field house in Minneapolis. They plan to fly to Houston after another practice Sunday.

"Dallas beat Denver when it had to. Then it beat St. Louis to win its division and it beat a really tough Los Angeles team to get into the National Football Conference finals," Grant said.

"There is such a thing as battle fatigue in football. You can go to the well just so many times," said Grant.

While Dallas may have been exhausted from too many rough Sundays in December, the Vikings had a fairly relaxed road to the National Football League playoffs. The Vikings clinched a division title with five games remaining in the regular season.

After outmuscling Washington in the first round of the playoffs, Minnesota had the ball almost exclusively in the first half of the game at Dallas. The Vikings carried a 10-0 lead into the second half—the half they had dominated through most of their games during the year.

The offensive line controlled the line of scrimmage against the Dallas defense, and when the game degenerated to fumbles and interceptions in the second half, Minnesota made some points out of several opportunities and Dallas couldn't.

Gary Larsen, Viking defensive tackle, managed to play the entire game at Dallas while thinking about a large sign that said "LOSERS" alongside the tunnel to the Viking dressing room.

"I'm the guy who jumped up there after the game and tore down that sign," Larsen said, "There are no losers on this football team."

Larsen said: "I've never seen an offensive team demolish a quality team the way our offense did against Dallas. They were blowing back the Dallas line so hard it scared me on the sidelines. You can't imagine how steamed up we were."

Evert Loses, Connors Wins

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Jimmy Connors took the first step toward winning tennis' Grand Slam, capturing the men's singles title in the Australian Open Championships Tuesday, but his fiance, Chris Evert, was beaten for the women's crown by Evonne Goolagong.

The 21-year-old Connors, the No. 2 seed from Belleville, Ill., overwhelmed Phil Dent of Australia 7-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 after Miss Goolagong, the 22-year-old Wimbledon champion, won her country's title for the first time in four tries, beating Miss Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. 7-6, 4-6, 6-0.

The Australian Championships are the first in the Grand Slam series that includes the French, Wimbledon and U.S. Open tournaments.

Connors, earning $9,685 from the $74,500 purse, was too quick for the 23-year-old Dent, the No. 9 seed, beating him in a match that lasted 2 hours, 5 minutes. Dent received $5,215.

"I'm the only one who can win the men's Grand Slam this year, but I won't be thinking about it," Connors said. "That would put too much pressure on me."

The men's final was an anticlimax following the thrilling 97-minute women's match watched by a shirtsleeved crowd of 12,500 which overflowed onto the Kooyong grass center court.

Miss Goolagong, the No. 2 seed, took the first set from the 19-year-old Miss Evert, the tourney's top seed, by winning a tie-breaker. Chris was cheered by the partisan crowd when she questioned a late line call against Miss Goolagong in the tie-breaker. The point was replayed and the American won it again.

But Miss Evert lobbed long at 6-5 and lost the opening set.

Miss Evert surged to a 4-1 lead in the second set, but Miss Goolagong cut the deficit to 5-4 before Chris won it with a backhand.

Evonne completely dominated the third set, which lasted only 18 minutes, outgunning Miss Evert with a blazing net game in which she allowed Chris only nine points.

"Evonne just played better than me," said Chris. "I was a bit sloppy in the final set."

Vic Edwards, Miss Goolagong's manager, said, "This is just the start. Now look out for Evonne in the Grand Slam."

Miss Goolagong also won the women's doubles final, combining with Peggy Michel of Pacific Palisades, Calif. for a 7-5, 6-3 triumph over Australians Kerry Melville and Kerry Harris.

In the all-Australian men's doubles final, Ross Case and Geoff Masters beat Bob Giltinan and Syd Ball 6-7, 6-3, 6-4.
